HIGHLY IMPORTANT.

A Great Battle Fought Near Chattanooga.

The Engagement of a Desperate Character.

THE ENEMY FINALLY REPULSED.

Our Lines Re-established as Before the Fight.

THE LOSS IN WOUNDED HEAVY.

Official Statement from General Rosecrans.

HEADQUARTERS OF THE ARMY OF THE CUMBERLAND, CRAWFISH SPRINGS, Ga., Sept. 19.

A desperate engagement commenced this morning at 11 o'clock.

The rebels made a heavy attack on the corps of Gen. THOMAS, forming the left wing of our army, and at the same time they attacked the right wing, which was thought to be a feint.

Gen. McCOOK's and Gen. CRITTENDEN's troops were thrown into the engagement as convenience offered, the main portions of their forces being on the march at the time.

The fight on the left was of a very desperate character. The enemy were repulsed, but, on being reinforced, regained their position, from which they were subsequently driven, after a severe engagement of an hour and a half.

Gen. THOMAS' forces then charged the rebels for nearly a mile and a half, punishing them badly.

About two o'clock in the afternoon the rebels made a fierce dash on our centre, composed of the divisions of Gens. VAN CLEVE and REYNOLDS.

Gen. VAN CLEVE's forces were struck on the right flank, and being vigorously pushed by the rebels fell back, until Gen. CARTER's line was broken and the troops became much scattered.

Gen. THOMAS on the left, and Gen. DAVIS on the right, then pushed forward their forces vigorously toward the gap, and, after a hard fight, recovered the ground which had been lost on the extreme right.

The fight disclosed the intention of the rebels, which evidently was to get between us and Chattanooga.

The general engagement, which commenced at 11 A. M., ended about 6 P. M.

Gen. PALMER, who had gathered together our scattered forces, and Gen. NEGLEY, who had been sent from the right flank to feel the centre, pushed forward, and reëstablished our line as it had been before the battle began, along the Chicamauga Creek.

The country where the battle was fought is level, but thickly overgrown with small timber and brushwood, and is very unfavorable for the use of artillery, very little of which was used.

The casualties in wounded are heavy, but extremely light in killed for so heavy a musketry engagement.

The fight on the left was one continuous roll of musketry for an hour or more.

No general officers were injured.

Col. HEG and Col. BRADLEY, commanding brigades, were wounded.

Col. JONES, of the Thirty-sixth Ohio regiment, and Col. CARROLL and Maj. VANNETLA, of the Tenth Indiana regiment, were also wounded.

Lieut. JONES, of Company A, Tenth Indiana regiment, was killed.

Lieut.-Col. HUNT, of the Fortieth Kentucky regiment and Col. MAXWELL, of the Second Ohio regiment, were wounded.

Lieut. DEGRAW and Lieut. LUDLOW, Lieut. FESSENDEN of battery H, Fifth artillery, were wounded.

Lieut. FLOYD, of battery I, Fourth artillery, and Capt. BROWN, of the Thirty-first Illinois regiment, wounded.

Capt. SEARLES, Assistant Adjutant-General, of STARKWEATHER's brigade, was killed.

Battery H. of the Fifth artillery, was lost, and afterward recaptured by the Seventy-ninth Indiana regiment.

The battle is not yet over. It will probably be renewed to-morrow.

Rebel prisoners taken represent that the corps of Gens. HILL, POLK, JOHNSTON and LONGSTREET, were in the engagement.

Our men are in the best of spirits, and eager to begin anew.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sunday, Sept. 20.

ROSECRANS, in a dispatch to HALLECK, says: "In the early part of the fight the rebels drove us some distance, capturing seven guns. Later in the action, however, we drove the enemy, reoccupying all our lost ground and capturing ten pieces of artillery. A number of prisoners, representing forty-five regiments, were captured by our forces." The battle was probably renewed yesterday morning.

FROM MEMPHIS.

Duel between Gens. Marmaduke and Walker—Changes in the Rebel Army.

A special dispatch to the Chicago Times, under date of Memphis, Sept. 15, via Cairo, states, upon the authority of a reliable gentleman just from Arkansas, that a duel was fought at Bayou Metaire, Sunday, the 6th instant, between the Confederate Generals, MARMADUKE and MARSH WALKER, in which the latter was mortally wounded. The circumstances are these: MARMADUKE, until lately, was the ranking officer of his, OWEN's and WALKER's divisions, stationed at Brownsville, but a commission of Major-General coming on for WALKER, he at once took command by virtue of his rank, and ordered his troops to fall back on Bayou Metaire, where PRICE was stationed. On failing back MARMADUKE accused WALKER of cowardice, whereupon WALKER challenged him, and they fought with pistols at eight paces. At the first fire Gen. WALKER was shot through the bowels. When our informant left, on the Tuesday following, he was not dead, but it was thought he could survive but a short time. The Arkansas troops, with whom he was a great favorite, are in a terrible state of excitement, and threaten to clean out MARMADUKE and his Missouri troops. The chagrin of MARMADUKE at being ranked by WALKER is said to be the sole cause of the difficulty. I have known Gen. WALKER for years, and know that a braver or more courteous man never lived.

I have just conversed with a gentleman direct from Atlanta, Ga., who states that Gen. JACKSON, formerly Chief of Cavalry on the Staff of Gen. BRAGG, and who succeeded Gen. VAN DORN in command of all the Confederate cavalry in BRAGG's Department, has, in turn, been superseded by Gen. S. D. LEE. The cause is said to be inefficiency and insubordination.

INTERESTING FROM KEY WEST.

No Symptoms of Yellow Fever—Few Vessels in Port—A Self-Sacrificing Surgeon.

Special Correspondence of the New-York Times.

KEY WEST, Monday, Sept. 14, 1863.

Our island has for the last two weeks undergone a period of unusual quietness and repose, resulting mainly from apprehension felt abroad concerning the health of the town, and more particularly as to yellow fever. Steamers pass by us both ways with no more of ceremony or notice than occasionally to stop at Sand Key and leave us a mail. And yet for all this apprehension there has not thus far this season been the slightest real cause, for our town never was more healthy at any season than it is now, and has been all Summer. In fact, we never have the fever here two successive years for palpable reasons. During the season of scourge, every person becomes sensitive on the matter, and the ensuing season every precaution is taken to ward it off. The police of the city is made thorough and complete. Quarantine regulations are rigidly enforced, and observed with willingness, and generally care is taken in all ways to do or avoid doing those things that are calculated to contribute to its introduction.

I noticed, in your number of the 19th ult., an account of the sadly destructive fever on the United States steamer Alabama, where it was stated that it was uncertain whether it was contracted at Havana or Key West. When we consider that there has been no case of fever in our harbor or on the island during this whole year thus far, we are undoubtedly safe in concluding that the seeds of disease were obtained at Havana, where the steamer stopped previous to her arrival here.

Our harbor is now quite bare of vessels, the only war vessels being the steamer Tahoma and ship Dale, with the small captured prize steamer Neptune, just arrived. The San Jacinto has gone on a cruise, the De Soto gone to the Mississippi, taking under convoy her prize, the steamer Alice Vivian, sent to New-Orleans for sale. She is a large river steamer about 450 tons burden, and appraised at $20,000, and the cargo which has been sent to New-York, consisting of 580 bales cotton, 36 barrels resin and turpentine, appraised at $177,103 50.

We have had very few prizes brought in here recently, probably owing to there being no Judge of the Court here at present, and that there is now a regular Prize Court at New-Orleans. It is hoped that the newly-appointed Judge for this place will present himself at an early day, as there is now very slight cause for any apprehension in regard to epidemic.

The naval coal depot, which has just been finished here at large expense to the Government, was last week partially filled up with 1,500 tons of coal, when the foundation commenced to settle and the centre column supporting the railroad and roof went down about ten inches, when they hurried the coal out again, and now the building must be appropriated for some other purpose. It is very well calculated for storage of provisions, clothing, materials, &c. The foundation is a sand bank, and the walls were sunk about ten feet below the surface by building cofferdams, yet they are not equal to the immense weight.

Among the very many cases of self-sacrifice and devotion to country which this war has presented, there is none more deserving of notice than that of Dr. THOMAS MCHENRY, of Chester County, Penn., Acting Assistant Surgeon in our Navy, who died in this city last month. Dr. MCHENRY arrived here in August, 1862, in the height of the yellow fever season, when strong men were prostrated and carried to their final home in twenty-four hours. He was at once ordered to duty on the steamer Huntsville, where his first visit was greeted with the corpses of two young officers of that ship, Surgeon and Paymaster, who had died the previous day. Several of the crew were down with the fever; and amidst this did this young man devote himself to duty as only those do who have offered up their lives on the altar of their country. Much demand was made upon his time by the Fleet Surgeon, Dr. HORNER, on the flagship St. Lawrence, where a large number were sick and dying with the fever. His devotion amid these arduous and heavy duties was such that his fellow officers felt compelled to remonstrate with him and require that he should take more care of himself. Providence spared him through those scenes of death to periods of greater calm and restored healthfulness. He was subsequently attached to the schooner Wanderer, commanding and retaining the liveliest sympathies of his many friends. Of a retiring and modest disposition, he was the true hero, meeting difficulties and dangers with no motive but a discharge of duty. His death occurred at the Naval Hospital, whence his remains were attended to their resting-place by a numerous concourse of his brother officers and his friends. F.

All Quiet at Knoxville—Severe Frost.

LOUISVILLE, Saturday, Sept. 19.

A dispatch from Gen. BURNSIDE reports all quiet at Knoxville and in that vicinity.

There was an extremely severe frost—the first of the season—last night. There are no reports of its ravages from any distance, but it is feared that all of the tobacco not gathered in is seriously injured, or entirely destroyed.

Government Loan.

PHILADELPHIA, Saturday, Sept. 19.

The sales of Five-twenties to-day amounted to $431,000. The advantage of the prompt delivery of bonds is shown by the increased orders. It is hoped that an arrangement will shortly be made by which the subscribers will receive their bonds at the time of subscription. Deliveries of bonds are made to Sept. 11.

Effects of the Storm.

WASHINGTON, Saturday, Sept. 19.

During the storm yesterday, among other damage done in the Lower Potomac, two schooners were capsized, the rain destroyed the crops, and the swollen stream carried away last night the Railroad bridge at Laurel. In consequence of the last, the trains to and from Baltimore were delayed.

Interruption of Canal Navigation.

ALBANY, Sunday, Sept. 20.

The storm of Friday and Saturday caused a freshet in the Mohawk and Hudson Rivers. At Hoffman's, on the canal, 150 feet of heavy embankment were washed out. It will take from five to seven days to repair the break.

The Canadian Parliament.

QUEBEC, Saturday, Sept. 19.

The debate on the motion of "No confidence in the Government," terminated this morning. The Government were sustained by two majority.

The Draft in Albany.

ALBANY, N. Y., Saturday, Sept 19.

The draft in this District, which was to have commenced on Monday, has been postponed for a few days.

THE EXPEDITION TO TEXAS.

Naval Battle at Sabine Pass—Three Gunboats Engaged.

TREMENDOUS BOMBARDMENT.

TWO UNION GUNBOATS DISABLED.

Desperate Fight and Slaughter of the Enemy.

Gallant Conduct of Capts. Crocker and Johnson.

From Our Special Correspondent.

NEW-ORLEANS, Saturday, Sept. 12, 1863.

I told you in my recent letters that a military expedition, on an important scale, was on the tapis. As the movement has taken place, and results are now matters of public notoriety, I shall endeavor to give a clear account of all that transpired. Expecting to join the expedition at a later period with the Commanding-General of this Department, I did not go forward with the advance, and therefore, send you the account of another eye-witness, which is pronounced very accurate by all the officers with whom I have conversed.

DESTINATION OF THE EXPEDITION.

So carefully had matters been kept secret, that it was not until the transports had left, crowded with troops, and far toward their destination, that the truth began to leak out that the expedition was directed toward the mouth of the Sabine River; the dividing line between the States of Texas and Louisiana. We had plenty of force, the troops were in exuberant spirits, and everything promised success. But unfortunately we were not sufficiently informed of the local difficulties of the place we had to reduce. Like at Vicksburgh, Port Hudson, Sebastopol, and many other places to be attacked, we had to feel our way, and I am sorry to say it cost us something in valuable lives and property; but no more to affect us—as to the ultimate result—than a rain-drop affects the duck on which it falls.

On arriving at the spot on which our troops were destined to land, it was soon found to be impossible to attempt anything of the kind, owing to the marshy nature of the ground and the excessively shallow water. It soon, therefore, became evident that upon our gunboats would devolve the whole task of attacking: and gallantly did some of them go into an engagement, that is pronounced by all who saw it, one of the most desperately contested of the whole war.

THE NAVAL ACTION.

The attack was commenced about half past 3 o'clock on the afternoon of the 8th, by the gunboat Clifton, Capt. CROCKER commanding, carrying nine heavy guns, two of which—one at the bow and the other at the stern—were 9-inch pivots.

Capt. CROCKER opened fire at a distance of about two miles from his bow pivot, and after an experimental shot or two, acquired the range, pouring in upon the enemy a continuous stream of fire, the bursting shells knocking huge holes in their works, and throwing the débris up in enormous quantities. The reports of the huge monster was absolutely deafening, and the ground fairly shook from the concussion.

The Sachem, Capt. JOHNSON commanding, in the meantime took up a position where she could pour a raking cross-fire, and also opened with her broadside of rifled pieces, which were served with equal precision and effect.

About the same time the powerful battery of the Arizona, Capt. TIBBETTS, from a position at the stern of the Sachem, also opened upon the enemy with screaming shell and hissing round shot,—every one of which could be plainly seen plowing up the interior of the fort and crashing through the breastworks.

This continued for some time before the enemy replied, the ships gradually nearing the fort and increasing the rapidity of their fire, until they were within point-blank range, and the Sachem had nearly passed by the works—on the right hand side of the oyster reefs fronting them,—when the enemy suddenly opened a terrific fire from his entire battery.

THE REBEL WORKS.

The fort is situated some distance below Sabine City—as shown by the map I send you. The first and main work consisted of a powerful earthwork of great length, mounted with six heavy guns, and garrisoned by a large number of men. To the left of this was a second work of similar character, mounting from three to five heavy guns, one or more of which was rifled. In addition to these two forts, the enemy had in sight, and rendering valuable assistance to the defence, three large cotton-clad river steamers, armed with one or more guns, and a schooner armed with one bow gun—probably of very large calibre, as she lay off at a distance of over two miles, and deliberately fired at the approaching fleet.

The firing now continued hot and fierce, the enemy's shot being generally aimed too high, passing over the tops of the vessels and striking in the water beyond them; while, on the other hand, nearly all the shots from the vessels were effective, searching every portion of the larger work, and, at times, with such effect that every man was driven from the guns.

AN ACCIDENT AND ITS RESULTS.

But just at this moment, when everything appeared most favorable, and the fortunes of war seemed about to assign the meed of victory to the gallant little vessels, the Sachem unfortunately grounded, broadside on, exposing her most vulnerable part to the concentrated fire of the enemy's largest work, the steamers and the sailing craft.

FURIOUS BATTLE OF THE GUNBOATS.

This was speedily taken advantage of by them, and a perfect storm of shot and shell fell upon, over, and around her, making the water hiss and foam like a boiling cauldron. Soon a heavy rifled shot struck her fair in the side, crushing in the iron-plating and wood-work, and, striking her machinery, exploded her steam chest, filling the vessel with the scalding vapor and leaving her a helpless wreck, with no hope of getting off the shore. Poor little Sachem!—a saucier craft never floated on the water nor a bolder man than her commander JOHNSON. We all remember the noble part she took in the affair at Galveston; one of the few bright spots in that otherwise dark and hideous piece of business.

The enemy now ceased their fire on the Sachem and turned their attention to the remaining two boats; the crews of which, realizing the position of their brave comrades, redoubled their exertions.

The Arizona, unfortunately, drew too much water to get to close quarters, and it devolved upon the Clifton alone to undertake the perilous task of silencing the works—a task that might have daunted the stoutest hearts.

But the Clifton was manned by brave men, and most nobly did the gallant CROCKER and his crew respond to the call upon them. Putting on a full head of steam, the devoted little craft ran down directly toward the largest fort, keeping up a hot fire all the time from her pivot guns, and as she neared the works, loading with double charges of grape, sweeping the parapet at every discharge.

The Clifton had now approached to within about 500 yards, and after giving the enemy's last discharge of grape from her pivot, attempted to throw her bow around, and take up a broadside position. But she had gone a few yards too near, and as she slightly swung around, her bow struck,—the velocity with which she was running driving her far upon the shore. She instantly commenced backing, keeping up a constant fire from her bow and port broadside guns, the former keeping the main parapet entirely clear of the enemy, while the latter played on the second battery.

This continued for some time, and faint hopes were entertained that the gallant Captain would succeed in extricating his boat from her terrible position. But this was not to be; for, at last, a shot from the battery at the left penetrated her boiler, in an instant reducing her to the same condition as the Sachem.

THE BATTLE ENDS.

The battle was now, to all intents and purposes, ended. Further resistance seemed utterly hopeless, but still the brave CROCKER could not endure the idea of giving up his vessel, and ordered his men to fight on. Without his knowledge, however, some party struck the white flag, and the enemy instantly ceased firing.

When informed of this, the Captain ordered the deck to be cleared, and, loading the after pivot-gun with a 9-inch solid shot, he fired it through the centre of the ship, from stem to stern, tearing the machinery in pieces, and rendering it utterly worthless to the enemy. After doing this, and spiking all the guns, the Clifton surrendered.

The remaining gunboat, the Arizona, quite unable to cope single-handed with the enemy, and drawing too much water to engage them in close quarters, reluctantly withdrew from the unequal contest, firing a farewell shot of defiance, as she steamed slowly down the bay, the enemy not replying to her challenge.

The Clifton had on board, beside her regular crew of one hundred and ten men, seventy-five sharpshooters; and the Sachem thirty sharpshooters—all of whom were captured, with the exception of seven men from the Clifton, who swam ashore, ran down the beach, and were taken off by a small boat.

The loss of the armament of the Clifton is unquestionably a serious one; her powerful battery of rifled guns being one of the most effective in the service. The boats, however, are so much damaged that the guns, to be of any service to the enemy, will have to be removed from them and remounted, and consequently it will be a long time before they can be made available.

The amount of killed and wounded I have not been able to ascertain, though they are not supposed to be heavy. I am happy to add that Capts. CROCKER and JOHNSON are neither thought to have been killed or wounded, but both prisoners.

A great deal will, no doubt, be attempted to be made out of this temporary check to our proceedings, but that will avail the enemy little. As we have shown them, upon many former occasions, all we require to know is what we actually have to contend with and then the difficulty is overcome. As the London Daily News very shrewdly remarks: We have now settled down into that passive, determined mood of warfare when we can neither be elated by petty successes, nor depressed by petty reverses. Our army and navy are safe and sound. They are composed of men of the right sort, and you may depend upon soon hearing of their paying back, with interest, this little affair of the Clifton and the Sachem.

ARMY OF THE POTOMAC.

The Late Cavalry Fight.

Correspondence of the New-York Times.

CULPEPPER COURT-HOUSE, Va., Tuesday, Sept. 15, 1863.

On the morning of the 13th the cavalry division of Gen. KILPATRICK crossed the Rappahannock at Kelly's Ford, and marched in the direction of Culpepper by Brandy Station. No rebels in force were encountered until reaching Brandy Station, where the advance, consisting of the Harris Light, or Second New-York, met them in some force. A brisk skirmish ensued, the rebels, however, immediately falling back toward Culpepper. At this place the division of KILPATRICK formed a junction with the divisions of BUFORD and GREGG, the whole under command of Gen. PLEASANTON. The whole corps advanced up the railroad toward Culpepper. Gen. KILPATRICK had the left, resting on the left of the railroad: Gen. BUFORD the centre, and Gen. GREGG the right—the skirmishing and cannonading becoming quite sharp as we advanced. As the cavalry moved across the plain in perfect order, some of the regiments in line, some in column, and a long line of skirmishers in front, with the batteries a little to the rear, the respective division and brigade commanders moving up with their Staffs, it presented one of the most brilliant spectacles of the war. The rebels did not make much resistance until we reached a point about one mile this side of Culpepper, where they opened three batteries upon KILPATRICK's division, but not checking the advance in the least. On approaching near the town, the rebels seemed disposed to dispute our further advance. A long line of dismounted infantry could be seen along a fence just across a deep creek, with two batteries in support. Gen. KILPATRICK ordered Gen. CUSTER to dislodge them, which he soon accomplished. The Sixth Michigan dismounted and engaged the rebel skirmishers, and soon routed them in good style. The Harris Light charged the battery on the edge of the town, capturing two guns. This brought the division of KILPATRICK to the edge of the town. BUFORD and GREGG were driving the enemy on the right, and Gen. KILPATRICK, with characteristic boldness, was about to charge the whole rebel force upon our left, and capture the train of cars that was moving off toward Orange, but was prevented by the unexpected discovery of a deep creek which was only passable at one place in his front. This enabled the train to escape, affording time to the rebel cavalry to take up a strong position, a little to the rear of the town, in the woods on the Cedar Mountain road. In the meantime, Gen. CUSTER at the head of the First battalion of the First Vermont, commanded by Major WELLS, dashed into town, driving the rebels out and capturing one piece of artillery to the right of the town. The rebels had two other pieces in the woods to the rear of the town, strongly supported by a strong force of cavalry. The Harris Light gallantly charged up into the woods where the rebels were posted, but were driven back by superior numbers. The First Vermont, consisting of two battalions, numbering about 150 men, under command of Major WELLS, now gallantly advanced to charge under a heavy fire from the enemy's battery. The Harris Light promptly rallied, and both regiments charged into the woods and drove the rebels further toward the Cedar Mountain road. Our loss here was the heaviest of any during the day. Gen. CUSTER, while leading the First Vermont, was wounded in the leg by the bursting of a shell, which also killed his horse, and the Harris Light sustained some loss, the extent of which I have been unable to learn. The rebels now formed just beyond the woods, where they had a battery in position. The Fifth New-York, and one battalion of the First Vermont charged upon the battery, but were repulsed, the rebels returning to the woods in great force, but were driven out the second time, whereupon they retreated for the Rapidan, closely pursued for four miles by Gen. BUFORD, when operations for the day ceased.

Our casualties on this day were three killed and forty wounded. On the 14th the cavalry advanced to the Rapidan, and found the enemy strongly posted at the respective fords on the other side of the river. In the fight the day previous the rebels were commanded by Gen. STUART—his force consisted of FITZHUGH LEE's and WADE HAMPTON's divisions of cavalry and five batteries.

TROOPER.

GEN. BLUNT'S CAMPAIGN.

The War in Western Arkansas and the Indian Country.

REVIEW OF OPERATIONS.

THE ENTIRE REGION RECLAIMED.

A LOYAL FEELING DOMINANT.

FACTS CONCERNING THE INDIANS.

From Our Own Correspondent.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Tuesday, Sept. 15, 1863.

By the arrival of messengers from Gen. BLUNT's headquarters at Fort Smith, Arkansas, we have confirmation most certain of the complete evacuation of the Indian Territory by the rebel forces. This gratifying result has been gained with but trifling loss on our part, and the complete disorder of the rebels.

Since the 5th of July last—a little over two months—when everything looked gloomy and disheartening in the Indian Territory, Gen. BLUNT has, with a force never exceeding 4,000 effective men, defeated and routed completely (both demoralizing and demobilizing) a rebel force doubling and trebling his own in strength. It may be that the comparative isolation of his field of operations, and the absorbing interest of the contest at other points, have engrossed the public attention, but certain it is that the movements of Gen. BLUNT have rarely received that notice they deserve. A brief résumé will show this.

When Gen. BLUNT assumed command of the District of the Frontier in the latter part of June, he had a force—whites, Indians and negroes included—of not more than 3,000 men. That force, by the addition of the Thirteenth Kansas and some cavalry, was raised to 4,000. At Fort Gibson on the Arkansas, 163 miles south from Fort Scott, Col. PHILLIPS, with three regiments of indifferent and partially disorganized Indians, a four-gun battery, and a few companies of nearly dismounted cavalry, had for four months been facing an enemy numbering not less than 7,000 men, who, if their leaders had had one tithe of the pluck of PHILLIPS, could at any time have "gobbled up" his entire force. There is not in the annals of this war a more striking example of tenacity and daring courage than that displayed by Col. PHILLIPS in so unflinchingly obeying the instructions of Gen. BLUNT and holding the Cherokee Territory, and thereby keeping Southern Kansas and Missouri from again being overrun.

Gen. BLUNT immediately pressed forward what troops he could gather, taking even the poorly armed and undrilled recruits just raised for the Fourteenth Kansas cavalry. Fortunately the Third Wisconsin cavalry, under Maj. CALKINS, was ordered to rendezvous at Fort Scott, with the intention of leaving the District. The emergency warranting it, Gen. BLUNT sent it to the field. Here commenced the rebel defeats. On the 1st and 2d of July, Col. WILLIAMS, of the First Kansas colored regiment, commanding escort, had severe engagements with the rebels under STAND WAITE, who with a superior force was strongly posted at Cabin Creek. The rebels were defeated and driven off in utter rout. BLUNT reached Fort Gibson on the 11th of July, and on the 15th, with 2,500 men, crossed the Arkansas, himself making a detour with cavalry, fifty miles, to outflank the enemy's advance, which he succeeded in doing, and on the morning of the 17th attacked the rebel COOPER, having a force of nearly 6,000, in a strong position. The rebels were badly beaten, losing 150 killed, 300 wounded, and 100 prisoners, with two guns, a flag, 500 stand of arms, and a lot of stores, etc.

On the 20th the rebels were largely reinforced, and numbering nearly 12,000, again advanced to Honey Springs, their pickets occupying the south bank of the Arkansas, and menaced Gen. BLUNT in rather formidable style. The latter, knowing that some reinforcements were on the way from Fort Scott, determined on their arrival to again attack the enemy.

Fortunately, while waiting for his own reinforcements, Col. CLOUD, Second Kansas, commanding a brigade, was moving to his assistance via Fayetteville, Ark. All having arrived, Gen. BLUNT, on the 22d of August, crossed the river, and moved upon the enemy. Though Gen. STEELE had at least 7,000 white troops, beside Indians, he had fallen back to Briar Town, North Fork, Canadian River, Creek Nation, fifty miles southeast of Fort Gibson. On hearing of BLUNT's movement he fled in haste to Perryville, south of the Canadian River, in the Choctaw Nation, not more than 50 miles from the Red River of Texas. Gen. BLUNT pressed on, in hot haste, with his cavalry, on the 25th ult., making, in one day, a march of 50 miles, surprising and capturing a strong rear-guard, and destroying all of STEELE's and COOPER's stores. The enemy had already broken in different bodies, and were fleeing in disorder. STEELE was fleeing with a portion of his army in the direction of Boggy Depot, 60 miles southwest of Perryville, about 18 miles from the Red River, and within a few miles of Fort McCullough, the only point left the Confederates in the entire Indian Territory.

The Creek regiments, (rebel,) under CHILI and UNI MCINTOSH, retreated by way of North Fork Town. Gen. BLUNT, understanding their desire to return to allegiance, sent Col. JUDSON and the First brigade to bring them. This was successfully accomplished, and the restoration of the Creek Nation to the National Government is now assured. The laying down of their arms on the part of the followers of the Creek Chief, CHILI and UNI MCINTOSH assures peace, because it heals a feud of thirty-five years' standing, which has more to do with the Indians espousing Slavery and the rebellion than a direct interest therein.

COOPER, TANDY WALKER (Choctaws,) and STAND WAITE (Cherokee,) fled directly south to the Red River, notifying the Indians that they must abandon their country, or be treated by the rebels as enemies. The result of this notification was to induce the Choctaws to report to Col. CLOUD in bodies, asking protection.

Gen. BLUNT returned to Briar Town with the Second and Third brigades. The Second brigade, under Col. BOWEN, Thirteenth Kansas, was sent to Webber's Falls, about half-way between Forts Smith and Gibson. With the Third brigade, Col. CLOUD, Gen. BLUNT pushed after CABELL, who was moving on Fort Smith. CABELL was met with 3,000 or 4,000 men, twelve miles from the fort. It was night, and our troops camped two miles from him. CABELL left in the night. Col. CLOUD, with his own regiment, Capt. CRAWFORD commanding, the First Arkansas cavalry, and RABB's battery, pushed after CABELL, who was traveling southward. CLOUD chased him fifteen or twenty miles, and had a brief engagement. The enemy fled in disorder, after a few rounds. Capt. ED. LYNN, of the Second Kansas, was killed by an ambush, as was also SINCLAIR, one of Gen. BLUNT's scouts. Pushing on with the rest of the brigade, the General had in the meantime entered the fort and hoisted the flag, which Capt. STANDS (now General) removed when he evacuated that post in June, 1861.

This is a hasty résumé of the last campaign of Gen. BLUNT, one whose results for the peace and security of the Southwest, and in the territorial area of the region restored to the National Government, will be found to be of very great, though not of as paramount importance as other campaigns in the Mississippi Valley or the Western slopes of the Appalachian range, under GRANT, BANKS, ROSECRANS and BURNSIDE. It has been made against the opposition, not only of a Department Commander, but also that from a powerful politico-speculative combination interested in preventing the return of the 10,000 loyal Indians who were being fed as refugees in Kansas. With miserably meagre forces, a long line of communication, indifferently guarded, a foe largely outnumbering his own forces, Gen. BLUNT has within two months advanced the National lines southward two hundred miles to the border of Texas. He has restored Western Arkansas as well as the Indian Nations. A brief historical summary will best illustrate the value of the work done by his gallant army.

Fort Smith is in Sebastian County, Arkansas, on the Arkansas, at the mouth of the Poteau River, one hundred and sixty-five miles west by north of Little Rock. It is a place of great importance to the rebels. Gen. BLUNT found here an extensive cartridge factory, as also other works. The post buildings are fine, and cost the United States Government $300,000. The centre of the plateau on which they are built is inclosed by a heavy stone wall, ditched and strengthened by earthwork. Fort Smith is the head of navigation on the Arkansas. Gibson is 66 miles west by land and 160 by water. The trade of Fort Smith is large, and as a military position and depot it was and is the controlling point on the Southwest Border. It was here that BEN MCCULLOUGH assembled the army which coöperated with PRICE in the campaign that culminated at Springfield, Mo.

It is a well known fact that the people of Western Arkansas were at first strongly opposed to secession. A meeting held at Van Buren on the 15th of January, 1861, opposed it and declared that the election of LINCOLN was not sufficient cause for separation. The vote upon calling a convention to consider the question of secession stood 27,412 for, and 15,826 against. Nine-tenths of the latter votes were cast west of Little Rock. The vote on delegates stood; Union, 23,621; Secession, 17,927. While the convention was in session a test vote resulted, 39 against secession and 30 for. Salutes were fired both at Fort Smith and Van Buren in honor of the thirty-nine Union votes. Under the excitement of Sumter the ordinance of secession was passed. The Union feeling has always remained strong. Gen. BLUNT and Col. PHILLIPS raised three regiments in the northwestern counties, and in Scott County there has been a Union guerrilla force of 200 for some months past. The presence of Gen. BLUNT's army, and the movements of DAVIDSON and STEELE will insure success. Western Arkansas certainly, and probably the entire State, will soon be applying, with loyal officers, for restoration to its old rank in the Federal Union.

The extent of the Indian Territory may be readily seen when it is known that it extends east and west from the Arkansas west line to the east line of New-Mexico, a distance of 500 miles; and from Kansas to Texas, north and south, about 250 miles. It is watered by the Arkansas, Canadian and Red Rivers, and by a number of important minor streams, such as the Illinois, Neosho and Verdigris. It is in the same latitude as Southern Tennessee and Northern Mississippi and Alabama, a region admirably for cereal grains, fruits, cotton, tobacco, and other Southern staples. It was, previous to the war, one of the great grazing regions of the West.

There is a present population (Indian) of 65,680; whites, 1,988; slaves, 7,369, (according to census of 1860, but according to present state of affairs, not more than half of that number.) These slaves were divided: Cherokees, 2,504; Creeks, 1,651; Chickasaws, 917; Choctaws, 2,294. The Seminoles owned no slaves, and but eight whites were resident in the nation. As a consequence, they were all loyal, except about 50 bribed by PIKE. Of the 75,000 living in the Indian Territory, at least 65,000 are more civilized than their neighbors of Arkansas, Missouri and Texas. The Choctaws were large cotton planters, some raising their 600 to 800 bales of cotton annually.

That the restoration of this Territory is complete, a glance at some facts in the history of the Indian nations will show. I mentioned the return to allegiance of the Creeks under CHILI and UNI MCINTOSH. These are the sons of the Agent, MCINTOSH, who was engaged in the Creek war with JACKSON in 1813, and who, in 1825, was murdered by the tribe for alleged treachery in ceding their lands by treaty to the United States. They had lived in Georgia, and in 1832 were finally removed to their present location. Out of the fraudulent treaty of MCINTOSH grew factions which have had more to do with the divisions of rebel and loyal than those sentiments themselves. It is curious to see how Slavery has tied itself to one side and embittered the quarrel. The MCINTOSHES lead, or led the half-breed, Slavery propaganda as well as pro-treaty party. OPOTHLEYAHOLO, a large slaveholder, led the anti-treaty party. This party are now in favor of abolishing Slavery.

A similar quarrel, even more bitter, has existed among the Cherokee Creeks. Agent MCINTOSH seems to have been a useful tool of the Southern party. We early find him trying to bribe JOHN ROSS, in 1817-18. Ross, or KOOWESKOOWE, is the son of a Scotch trader and half-breed woman. He, like all the leaders of these nations, has received a fine education, and is a man of considerable ability. He was opposed to ceeding the lands of his people, which were then part of the State of Georgia. In 1829, he, as agent of his nation, appealed from the State Legislature to the Supreme Court of the United States. In this he was successful. A series of aggressions was continued by the Georgians till 1835, when the Cherokee agent, J. F. SCHERMERHORN, with Major RIDGE, JOHN RIDGE and BOUDINOT, with 100 other Indians, entered into a treaty for the cession of their lands. JOHN ROSS and 15,000 protested against this fraud, known as the treaty of New-Echota. The Government, however, insisted on its provisions, and Gen. SCOTT was sent with a force to enforce the same. The Cherokees removed West. The RIDGES and BOUDINOT were put to death by the nation. This treaty was the cause of the bitterest feud existing among the nations. STAND WAITE is the leader of the Ridge party. His defeat and flight will heal the divisions among the Cherokees, and cement them all as a loyal people. Their Legislature not only abolished Slavery, but made the negroes citizens.

It is a curious speculation to know what will be the future of these nations. It cannot be possible to retain them in tutelage much longer. Wealthy, well educated, with large tribal, territorial and monetary possessions, and a population that, with the proposed removal of Kansas Indians to that Territory, will reach an 100,000, why is it not possible to organize a Territorial Government and let them be represented in Congress? It is certainly necessary for the security of this region that a form of Government under the direct control of the National authorities should be adopted, in place of the present loose tribal systems. This country is now in a condition to be administered into order and security. Well organized, with officers from among those who have fled and are trusted by them, such a Territory would strengthen us greatly in the Southwest, and pave the way for a new Free State. We certainly can no more object to an Indian than a Mexican State, such as New-Mexico will make when it shall enter the Union. ALBERT PIKE, acting as Confederate Commissioner, held out, as one of the inducements for these Nations to go with the South, that they should have a delegate in the Confederate Congress to represent their interests. Certain it is that a Territorial Government would be the best method of educating them out of their present abnormal condition into that normal one of citizenship.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

The Swiss Schuetzenfest.

FOURTH DAY.

Saturday, the last and closing day of the great Swiss shooting festival, according to the programme, was to have witnessed a grand turn-out of sharpshooting amateurs, and gay people of all sexes and ages; for in the afternoon the celebrated Arion Singing Club, assisted by HIRSCHMANN'S fine brass band, 20 pieces strong, was to have given a delightful concert, and in the evening the prizes were to have been distributed; the whole affair to conclude with a merry ball and supper. But the Clerk of the Weather had not been counted in the arrangements, and vented his spite accordingly.

The Festival, of whose progress we have made daily record, had not fared well on Thursday and Friday, owing to our Equinoxtial storm, but on Saturday it was absolutely maltreated. The wind howled and the rain pelted among the trees at Jones' Wood in the semblance of a real Alpine gale without the cosy shelter of the Alpine chälets for a resource. SOMMER, who is in all senses of the word a host, did his best at the hotel, but the number of his visitors in this instance exceeded the comfortable accommodations of his space, and bedraggled matrons and indignant babies lamented vainly to the thorough draught in porch and hall. The number of these gentle customers indicated clearly what a success the closing day of the Fest would have been with more propitious skies. However uncomfortable the general state of things, the shooting commenced, as usual, at 7 A. M., and continued with but little intermission throughout the entire day—the leading targets, "Switzerland" and "Liberty," coming in for more attention than before. Outside dancing was, of course, not to be thought of—the dancing platforms, even in the morning, looking like private little lakes of elevated pretensions, but the irrepressible SOMMER, greatly moved by the disconsolate aspect of his guests of the feebler sex, at an advanced hour of the day cleared his large dining-halls for a general dance, the proposal for which was received with enthusiastic shouts of gratitude, the very infants uplifting their Teutonic voices to swell the chorus, with a style of jodeln to be achieved by Swiss or German babies only. Several officers from Riker's Island, representing Fatherland and also the home of TELL, arrived in damp uniforms, to add still more life to the scene, and Hirschmann's Band vigorously plied clarionet and geige, so that rain and rheumatism were soon forgotten.

Meanwhile, the shooting outside terminated at 6 P. M., and the "markers," with their picturesque red caps and tunics, and white pantaloons, slightly the worse for water; the Appenzellers, in their wild mountain costume; the mimic Wm. Tell and his son, and the rest of the quaintly-attired corps of the attachés of the Society or Schuetzen'hob, joined the now joyous rout, and the fun grew fast and furious, concluding only toward 9 o'clock.

The desultory character of the shooting and other drawbacks, prevented the Committee on Prizes from announcing their decisions, and the distribution of prizes was deferred until this afternoon. The Arion Society likewise postponed its concert until 3 o'clock to-day, when especial preparations and exertions will be made to remedy the unavoidable mishaps of the past week. Various associations of riflemen, including the New-York Schuetzen, and others from Brooklyn, Bloomingdale and New-Jersey, will swell the list of competitors. The regular shooting for prizes was declared closed on Saturday evening, but it is possible that, under peculiar conditions, it may be reopened to-day. We have, heretofore, fully indicated the character of the regulations adopted by the Schuetzenbob for this Festival, but as we find that many American and English marksmen manifest an inquiring interest regarding the system pursued, we will briefly allude to them again:

There are two great targets, named respectively "Switzerland" and "Liberty." At the first the charge for a chance, or three shots, is $5; at the second, for the same privilege, $2. No less than $785 in money prizes, varying in value from $5 to $100 are staked upon the first target, and about $100 on the second. Independent of these are eight minor targets marked successively with the first eight letters of the alphabet. The charge per shot at these is one dime of our currency. Among these one hundred prizes are divided to be awarded to such competitors as may hit the bull's eye of either target five times in succession with the most exact accuracy. The other arrangements in reference to the marking and designation of shots are in strict accordance with the rules and practice of the great biennial national Shooting Festivals in Switzerland, and have been heretofore long hisly described. The whole forms a most striking, curious and animated scene.

It is believed that with any kind of countenance from the weather, the Wood will be crowded with happy throngs, and the charming vocal and instrumental music promised will greatly add to the interest of the closing ceremonies. Moreover, it is quite probable that several civic and military dignitaries of this neighborhood will be present to enjoy the scene.

Result of the Draft.

From present appearances, the draft in this City will result in securing about 5,000 soldiers to the Government—a little more than twenty-five per cent. of the whole number drafted. The Enrolling Boards in the six districts of this City have about half completed their work of hearing claims for exemption, and the following is the result thus far:

FOURTH DISTRICT.

Held to service	197	Exempted	930
Substitutes	105	Laid over	517
Commuted	19
Total			1,768

FIFTH DISTRICT.

Held to service	191	Exempted for disability	335
Substitutes	105	Exempted for other causes	544
Commuted	9
Total			1,184

SIXTH DISTRICT.

Held to service	308	Exempted for disability	518
Substitutes	258	Exempted for other causes	806
Commuted	72
Total			2,164

SEVENTH DISTRICT.

Held to service	148	Exempted for disability	274
Substitutes	75	Exempted for other causes	547
Commuted	5
Total			1,040

EIGHTH DISTRICT.

Held to service	349	Commuted	53
Substitutes	44	Exempted	1,434
Total			1,879

NINTH DISTRICT.

Held to service	249	Exempted	762
Substitutes	82	Laid over	119
Commuted	4
Total			1,206

RECAPITULATION.

Held to service	1,442	Exempted	6,152
Substitutes	668	Laid over	636
Commuted	161
Grand total			9069

From the above table it appears that 2,111 soldiers have thus far been obtained, and $33,300 has been paid to the Government in the shape of commutation money. The larger portion of those who have been examined claimed exemption from one cause or another, and there is no doubt that there will be less exemptions in proportion to the number among the remaining 10,000 men to be examined than there has been among the first 10,000, as it has been found that those having the strongest claims present themselves first. It is probable, therefore, that the number of men held, including substitutes, will reach at least 5,000, and perhaps more. This is not a very flattering result of the draft, but it is much better than many anticipated. It is thought that the Enrolling Boards will complete their work by the end of this month, after which they will commence arresting those who have not responded to the notices served upon them.

County Substitute and Relief Committee.

This Committee sent out sixty-three substitutes, Saturday, of whom seven were rejected. One of the substitutes was a colored man, sent for a colored conscript. It was the second case of the kind. The Committee first tried the experiment of offering a colored man for a white man, at the request of a white conscript, who brought the colored man before them. The colored man was refused, and word was brought back that colored substitutes could be received only for colored conscripts. Several militiamen were rejected because their statements under oath showed that they had not been active in attention to the militia duties, and one man, from Brooklyn, was rejected for the reason that both his residence and business were in Brooklyn, and that his business was of a profitable character, while his attention to duty had not been of a very active character. So far only two militiamen resident in Brooklyn have been aided by the Committee. In these cases the men had both been out to the war every time the regiment went, and had served here during the riots.

So far the Committee have given aid to applicants in about 650 cases. Of these about 300 were indigent persons, 100 firemen, 195 militia men and 75 Policemen. The Committee did not pass a single case without a substitute last week. About 610 substitutes have been furnished in all. A MRS. LARKINS appeared yesterday and complained that her husband, having gone as a substitute for JNO. BARRETT, a butcher, gave BARRETT $200 to give her, which he refused to do. BARRETT was summoned and testified that LARKINS gave him the money to give to his children at the rate of $2 a week, and that he had given the mother $10.

BARRETT'S story was not believed by the Committee, from the fact that Mrs. LARKINS held the order of her husband upon BARRETT to deliver the money to her. BARRETT was required to comply with the order, which he did, and accompanied by a messenger, sent by the Committee, Mrs. LARKINS went and deposited the money in a savings' bank.

Howard Mission and Home for Little Wanderers.

This excellent institution, which was forced to close its doors on the second day of the riots, by the threats of Gov. SEYMOUR'S "friends," but was finally saved from the torch by the intercession of a Catholic priest, and by the fact that the burning of the Mission building would endanger the Catholic Church in the rear, has reopened again at No. 37 New-Bowery, and is in a more flourishing condition than ever. Over 300 pupils attend the day school conducted by the Mission, where they are instructed in English branches and music by the best teachers, and get a good wholesome dinner every day gratis. The Howard Mission does not keep a home in their building, but supplies the wants of needy families who are reported as deserving by their missionaries, and procures homes for orphans, and children of poor parents. Great pains are taken, by the managers of the institution, to procure first-class homes for destitute children, and they have hitherto been remarkably successful. No children are sent out without the written consent of the father and mother, if there be any living, and it is rare that they have a child returned to them, or that any dissatisfaction arises either on the part of the parent, child or guardian. Eight or ten children will leave the institution this week for homes in the West. The Howard Mission is supported by the voluntary contributions of our citizens, and no more deserving charity exists among us. Great credit is due to Mr. VAN METER for the excellent management of the institution, and the good results that are daily flowing from it. His associates in the institution are Rev. R. G. TOLES, Principal of the School; Rev. T. W. HUGHES and F. A. THOMPSON, Missionaries; Misses LEWIS, WALLACE, and HENLEY, Teachers; Professor T. E. PERKINS, Teacher of Music; and Dr. THOMAS, Physician.

The Metropolitan Police—Their Drill and Discipline.

To the drill and discipline of the Metropolitan Police was mainly due their success during the riots. Taken unawares, suddenly called upon to meet mobs well armed and overwhelming in numbers, they would have been powerless but for the military drill the strict discipline they have been subjected to. This regulation of the Department has been looked upon as unnecessary by very many citizens; and not a few of the force, prior to the riots, deemed it useless, annoying and oppressive. It was the means of saving and City and saving them. The sagacity which suggested it received an entire vindication in July.

Commissioners ACTON and BERGEN, at a late meeting adopted a resolution which is embodied in the following admirable order:

OFFICE OF THE SUPERINTENDENT OF POLICE,
No. 300 Mulberry-street,
NEW-YORK, Sept. 17, 1863.

GENERAL ORDER No. 331.—Capt. ——, ——Precinct: The success of the Metropolitan Police in suppressing the late riots was due more to the efficiency of the discipline they had previously been subjected to than to any physical superiority they possessed. It was not by overpowering numbers that large bodies of determined men, heavily armed, and inspired by rage and enthusiasm, were so speedily repulsed and scattered to the wind. But by the perfect subordination evinced by every portion of the forces, the ease with which orders were understood, the readiness with which they were complied with, the facility of movements made, and the consciousness every individual evinced of the advantage of performing every act in an orderly manner.

It is not only proper that this discipline should be kept up to the former standard, but it is equally important that it should be improved on, and especially so with company and platoon officers.

The Board being influenced by such considerations have, at a recent meeting, provided penalties for neglect of attendance at the regular drills of the force. Hereafter the penalty for absence of company and platoon officers will be, first offence three days, each subsequent one five days' pay. For absence of patrolman, first offence one day, each subsequent one three days' pay.

JOHN A. KENNEDY, Superintendent.
DANIEL CARPENTER, Inspector.

GENERAL CITY NEWS.

ROBBED IN THE STREET.—Mr. ADAM SCHILLING, of No. 422 Ninth-avenue, yesterday appeared before Police Justice KELLY, and made complaint against WILLIAM DUFFY, whom he charges, in company with two others, with having knocked him down and robbed him of a watch and chain. The affair occurred about 12 o'clock on Saturday night, in Fortieth-street. SCHILLING was knocked down into a basement area, and was so stunned by the fall that the robbery was easily effected. Officer MOULIGAN, of the Twentieth Precinct, arrested DUFFY and found upon him the stolen chain. He was committed in default of $2,000 bail.

MAJ. R. J. FALLS.—The many friends of Maj. R. J. FALLS will be pleased to learn that he has so far recovered from the injuries received in Gen. STONEMAN'S raid to the rear of LEE'S army as to be able to perform light duty. He has been ordered on Gen. HATCH'S Staff, at Philadelphia, where his duties are mainly the instruction of young officers. He is now in this City on furlough. The Major is a gallant officer and patriotic man; went into the war from a conviction of duty, and intends, if his life is spared, to continue in it till the close.

A SERGEANT OF THE POLICE SERIOUSLY INJURED.—On Friday, about 10 o'clock, as Sergt. WATERS, of the First Precinct, was passing up Fulton-street, he was very seriously injured by some brick falling on his head from the top of the Sun building. He was taken to the Second Precinct Station-house and soon after to the New-York Hospital by Officer MCNALLY, of the Second. His wounds, though very severe, are not regarded as dangerous. The bricks from the Sun building were blown off by the high wind prevailing at the time.

A DISHONEST SERVANT.—JOHANNA SHANNON, a domestic in the employ of Mrs. HELEN C. ROBINSON, of No. 61 Leroy-street, was arrested, yesterday, charged with having stolen a box containing over $50 in money, from the sleeping-room of her employer. The box was broken open, and the money taken out. JOHANNA made an attempt to burn the box, but being interrupted in this, she threw a portion of it into the sink, where it was found. She was committed for trial.

ARREST OF COUNTERFEITERS.—THOMAS HOUGHEY, CHAS. ARMSTRONG and CHAS. SHORT were arraigned yesterday, charged with passing counterfeit $5 bills on the Brandon Bank, of Brandon, Vt., on Saturday night. There were large quantities of this spurious money put afloat on Saturday night in the upper part of the City, and the public would do well to be careful in regard to the $5s of this Bank. The prisoners were all committed for examination.

THE HOWARD MISSION.—This excellent institution at No. 37 New Bowery, was reopened by Mr. W. C. VANMETER, Superintendent, on the 7th inst., and up to date he has welcomed back 305 of his scattered flock.

Important Habeas Corpus Case—Power of an Enrolling Board to Revise and Change its Decision.

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT.

Before Judge Nelson, at Chambers, in Cooperstown, Sept. 16, 1863.

Ex Relatione, Daniel Irons.—NELSON, J.—The petition states that the relator was drafted into the service of the United States on the 28th ult., under the act of Congress, March 3, 1863, at Norwich, in the County of Chenango, N. Y.; that on the 31st, a notice was served on him, signed by S. Gordon, Captain and Provost-Marshal of the Nineteenth District, New-York, notifying him that he was drafted for the period of three years in accordance with the aforesaid act of Congress, and requiring him to report on or before the 7th day of September, 1863, at the place of rendezvous in Norwich aforesaid, or be deemed a deserter, and subject to the penalty prescribed therefor; that transportation would be furnished him on presenting this notification at these headquarters.

That in obedience to such order the relator reported himself to the Provost-Marshal at Norwich aforesaid, on the 4th of September inst., and his name was entered on the books of the Provost-Marshal with the day he reported, since which time he has been in the custody of said Marshal, who claims a right to be restrain him of his liberty as a drafted soldier under the aforesaid act of Congress.

The relator further states, that his mother, residing in Madison County, N. Y., on the 8th of August, 1863, caused to be presented to the Provost-Marshal and Board of Enrollment, affidavits and certificates in due form, setting forth that she was a widow, and mother of the relator and other sons, named with their ages and residences; that they were enrolled in the first class and liable to military duty under the aforesaid act of Congress; that she had no property, and was dependent upon the labor of the relator for support, and that she elected him to be exempt from the draft; that she was infirm, setting forth the nature of the infirmity; that the papers thus duly authenticated were received by the Provost-Marshal and the Board, and decided to be sufficient in form and substance, and allowed the application, and an indorsement to that effect was made upon the papers, and the relator declared by the Board to be exempt from the draft, and his name, as he was informed by said Board, stricken from the enrollment.

The return of the Provost-Marshal to the habeas corpus, states that the relator was not then, nor at the time of the service of the writ, in his custody or under his control; and further, that he was legally drafted into the service of the United States under the act 3d March, 1863, and that on the 8th August, 1863, the mother of the relator made application to the Board for his exemption from draft about to be made, and which application was on that day allowed, and the relator exempted. That afterward, on 19th same month, the Board reconsidered the claim and disallowed it, and the name of the relator was retained on the enrollment list, and subsequently drafted—that the relator has not yet been examined by the Board in pursuance of the act of Congress.

The first question presented upon the return is whether or not the relator is in custody and keeping of the Provost-Marshal, and thus restrained of his liberty, within the meaning of the law, which has provided the writ of habeas corpus as a fit and proper remedy. For, although the Provost-Marshal in the return, denies that the relator is in his custody, or under any restraint from him, yet, if the facts stated or admitted in other parts of the return in legal effect contradict this denial, it must be regarded as the denial of a conclusion of law rather than of fact.

The act of Congress, section 12th, provides that the persons so drawn shall be notified, &c., "requiring them to appear at a designated rendezvous to report for duty."

SEC. 13. Any person drafted and notified to appear as aforesaid, may, on or before the day fixed for his appearance, furnish a substitute, &c., and any person failing to report (for duty) after due serving of notice, &c., shall be deemed a deserter, and shall be arrested by the Provost-Marshal, &c.

SEC. 14. All drafted persons shall, on arriving at the rendezvous, be carefully inspected by the Surgeon, &c., and all persons drafted, and claiming exemption, &c., shall present their claims to be exempted to the Board, whose decision shall be final.

We hold that it is quite clear, from a view of these provisions of the act, that the person drafted is in the custody and under the control of the Provost-Marshal from the time he reports to him at the designated rendezvous for duty, in pursuance of notice to that effect, after the draft has taken place. If in truth the examination may not be made with a view to ascertain if the conscript is an able-bodied citizen, immediately on the report, on account of the pressure of business. The examination requires time, care and deliberation, which may occupy days and weeks; but, whatever may be the time required in the given case, the drafted person must remain in the custody and under the control of the Provost-Marshal, unless specially discharged by him for the intervening period, on a proper application, or otherwise by the voluntary act of the officers.

The next question on the return is, whether or not it was competent for the Board to revise and recall its decision given on the 8th of August exempting the relator from the draft on the evidence of the election of his mother;—or rather, confining myself to the precise question raised by the learned counsel for the P. M., whether or not the Board had made and published any decision upon the evidence presented before them in behalf of the mother, and in favor of the exemption of the relator. For, it was candidly admitted by the counsel, that if a decision had been made and published, as the powers of the Board were quasi-judicial, special and limited, it was not competent, upon familiar authority, for it to revise or recall that decision; the power was exhausted in the special case, and the Board functus officio. This principle is so well and firmly settled by authority, it would be useless, after the frank admission of the counsel, to stop and refer to it.

As it respects the question, whether or not a decision was in fact made, it appears from the original papers of the widow, which were presented to the Board, and which were produced before me on the hearing by the Provost-Marshal, that not only a decision was made upon the evidence discharging the relator, but a record was made upon them at the time to that effect, and which was thereupon announced to the parties interested. Indeed, the fact is not denied in the return. It is admitted in terms that the claim of exemption in behalf of the mother, made on the 8th August, was allowed by the Board, but that afterwards, and on the 19th it was reconsidered and disallowed. The distinction, therefore, set up to take the case out of the rule admitted in respect to bodies clothed with special and limited judicial powers, has no foundation, either in fact or law.

Without pursuing the case further, our conclusion is 1. That the relator was, in contemplation of law, in the custody and under the control of the Provost-Marshal, at the time of the service of this writ of habeas corpus, and also at the time of the hearing. And

2. That the action of the Board of Enrollment upon the evidence presented in behalf of the mother, on the 8th day of August, exempting the relator, and discharging him from the enrollment and draft, exhausted its powers; and the subsequent revisal of the decision was coram non judice and void. The relator is entitled to his discharge from the custody or control of the Provost-Marshal, and to be free from all restraint by him under or by virtue of the authority of the act of Congress of March 3, 1863.

MONDAY, Sept. 21—A. M.

The trade of the past week was active in the sales of Foreign and Domestic Merchandise and to a fair average in Domestic Produce for export. Prices on the Corn Exchange show a considerable recovery. The Import entries of Foreign Goods are about the same as the corresponding period last year, but the amount of Goods going into market is larger and the stock in bond on the decrease. The value of Export clearances of Domestic Produce is nearly a million less than the same week last season, accounted for in part by the reduced supplies of old Wheat coming through the canals. The Export of Specie continues on a moderate scale. There is a considerable accumulation, however, in the Sub-Treasury for Customs, and this demand and the unfavorable army rumors at the close of the week advanced the price of Gold to 134¾ ℔ cent. The market for Money has become very steady again, and under the comparative ease which it now manifests there is a rapid revival of speculation on the Stock Exchange in the Railway Shares. The following table shows the advance of the week, which is pretty general throughout the list, though strongest on the New-York Roads:

The price of Gold Coin, which showed much firmness on Friday afternoon, further advanced, on Saturday, to 134 ℔ cent. at the Stock Exchange Board, and subsequently on the Street to 135 ℔ cent., the highest point since the second week in July. The additional rise on the Street was owing to rumors of adverse Army news. The Custom-house demand has been active all through the week, but the Export movement is again very moderate ($536,000 for the week,) the ruling of Exchange not keeping pace with the rise in Gold. Bills on London are nominally (since the sailing of the steamers in the forenoon) 147℔148 @ cent. Money is easy to the Brokers, and the rate is more generally 6 than 7 ℔ cent. The Banks hold $20,480,000 in United States legal tender Currency, after paying into the Treasury on Friday $3,500,000.

The Railway speculation was again excited on Saturday, for the leading New-York roads, Central and Erie. Of these the sales at the regular morning Board, (the only session on Saturday,) were over 20,000 shares, and the price of Central rose 1 ℔ cent. additional after the adjournment. The other New-York roads and the Western shares were fairly supported, though showing less buoyancy than New-York Central or Erie. On the Street, at 3 o'clock, the following rates were made in comparison with Friday afternoon. The unfavorable state of the weather somewhat repressed the ordinary afternoon excitement on William-street:

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE REBELLION.

From the headquarters of the Army of the Cumberland, at Crawford Springs, Ga., we have a dispatch, dated on Saturday night, giving an account of a desperate fight which had raged that day between the rebels under Johnston, Polk, Hill and Longstreet, and a part of Gen. Rosecrans' army, under Gens. Thomas, McCook, Crittenden and Van Cleve. The attack was made by the enemy, who threw a very heavy force against the corps of Gen. Thomas, forming the left wing of our army, and at the same time opened fire as a feint upon our right. The aim of the rebel commander was to get between Gen. Rosecrans and Chattanooga, but his plan was quickly developed, and after seven hours' hard fighting, in which the advantage alternated with the opposing forces, the enemy was finally repulsed, and our lines reëstablished as before the engagement. The fighting was entirely by the infantry, as the character of the country was such that artillery could not be effectively used. Our casualties in wounded were heavy, but exceedingly few in killed. We had no general officers injured. A dispatch from Gen. Rosecrans to the General-in-Chief states that the battle would probably be resumed yesterday.

By the arrival at this port of the steamship Columbia, from New-Orleans, we have particulars of an expedition under Gen. Franklin to the mouth of the Sabine River, Texas, which has proved unsuccessful. On arriving at the place designed for the landing of the troops, outside the enemy's fortifications, it was found impossible to disembark owing to the marshy nature of the ground and excessively shallow water. Upon the gunboats Clifton, Sachem and Arizona, therefore, devolved the whole task of attacking the batteries, and they came gallantly up to the work. The bombardment continued some time, gradually increasing in briskness, until the vessels got within point-blank range of the forts, when the enemy suddenly opened a terrific fire, in which they were aided by a fleet of three cotton-clad steamers and a schooner further up the river. At first the fire from our gunboats was more accurate than that of the enemy, and we seemed clearly to be getting the advantage, but unfortunately the Sachem grounded broadside to the rebel fleet, and very soon she was riddled and left an utter wreck. The Arizona's greater draft of water would not admit of her nearer approach to the batteries, and the Clifton was compelled to essay the task of silencing them unaided. In the gallant attempt she also struck hard on the bottom and was not long before meeting a fate similar to the Sachem's. Capt. Crocker, her commander, made an heroic effort to save his vessel, but seeing the matter hopeless, he loaded his after gun with a 9-inch solid shot and fired it through the centre of the ship, crashing the machinery in pieces and effectually destroying the vessel. The Arizona was then forced reluctantly to withdraw, unable to cope singly with the enemy. Besides the vessels' crews we lost as prisoners 98 soldiers who were acting as sharpshooters. The numbers killed and wounded are not very large.

We have one day's later advices from Charleston by the arrival of the steamship McClellan. Gen. Gillmore is still sedulously engaged in mounting heavy guns at Fort Wagner and Cummings Point to bombard the city. The fire from the rebel works on James Island had proved somewhat annoying to the working parties, but casualties were few. The Columbia brought 100 rebel prisoners taken at Fort Wagner.

The intelligence received from all our armies that the rebel military organizations are losing heavily from desertions is fully confirmed by rebel newspapers, as well as by the orders of their Generals and proclamations from Jeff. Davis and the Governors of the States in insurrection. There is scarcely a rebel paper to which there are not many references to this subject, the importance of which they cannot dispute. Whenever our armies are confronted by rebels, there is a constant stream of deserters coming in, and all tell the same story. They have endured insufferable hardships, and believe the cause in which they have been fighting is hopeless. The rebels west of the Mississippi, maintaining only a stealthy communication with the heads of the rebellion, are most demoralized, and seem to have only vitality enough to run.

It is reported that the rebel Major-Gen. Marsh Walker was mortally wounded on Sunday the 6th inst., in a duel with the rebel Gen. Marmaduke at Bayou Metaire. The difficulty was occasioned by Marmaduke's jealousy of Walker, who had recently been promoted from the subordinate to the ranking General.

FROM EUROPE.

By the arrival at this port Saturday afternoon of the steamship City of Cork, from Liverpool Sept. 5 and Queenstown Sept. 7, we have Cork papers to the 7th inst.—two days later. The news is not important. The question of the recognition of the rebels by France was still a topic of newspaper discussion, and the victualling of the Florida at Brest was considered a still more explicit declaration of Napoleon's intentions in this regard than the late pamphlet on "France, Mexico and the Confederate States." The deputation from Mexico to offer the crown to the Archduke Maximilian had arrived, and it was considered positive that he would accept it. The insurgents in Poland on the 3d inst. drove 300 Russian troops across the Gallician frontier. Consols, after official hours, closed at 93⅜ to 93¾.

GENERAL NEWS.

Saturday, the fourth day of the Swiss Shooting Festival having proven extremely unfavorable, the distribution of prizes to successful marksmen and the grand vocal and instrumental concert of the Arion Singing Club have been postponed until this afternoon. Throughout the earlier part of the day shooting at the various minor targets will be open to all comers under the general rules, and as it is expected that a large concourse and several distinguished visitors will be present, special arrangements for the accommodation of passengers to Jones' Wood have been adopted by the Second and Third-avenue Railroads.

Late Santa Fe papers announce the good progress of Col. Carson's expedition against the Navajoes, and the severe punishment that these savages are receiving bids fair to put a speedy stop to the depredations which have so long distressed the settlers in that territory.

There have recently been some additions to the number of traveling newspapers in the South, which now, together with the wandering Executives and itinerant State Governments, would make a respectable caravan. The following are the names and present locations of these migratory journals : Memphis (Tenn.) Appeal, at Atlanta, Ga. ; Chattanooga (Tenn.) Rebel, at Marietta, Ga. ; Knoxville (Tenn.) Register, at Cleveland, Ga. ; Huntsville (Ala.) Confederacy, at Marietta, Ga. The Charleston papers will next join the flying caravan, and probably locate at Columbia, the capital of South Carolina.

The Stock Market was firm on Saturday, the speculation of the day running mainly on New-York Central and Erie. Sales of Central late in the day at 139¼ per cent. Gold advanced to 134¾ per cent.

A brisk business was transacted in Breadstuffs on Saturday at advanced prices Cotton, Sugars and Tallow were also freely purchased at buoyant rates. Provisions were in fair demand and generally firm. Hay, Hops, Hides, Leather, Fish and Tobacco were in good request. Wool was quite active. Linseed Oil and Spirits Turpentine were more sought after and much dearer. Freights were quiet, with 598 vessels of all classes in port.

France, Mexico and the United States.

The foreign papers continue to circulate the report that our Government has issued a formal protest against the French operations in Mexico ; and some of them add that this protest is couched in such direct and energetic terms that it can scarcely fail to incur the displeasure and resentment of the Emperor of the French.

These reports may be true, but they strike us as improbable. We have certainly, up to the present time, no authentic information to give them even a show of truth. Our Minister in Mexico remains there still accredited to the Republican or Juarez Government, which, at the latest advices, had its headquarters at San Luis Potosi, and seemed not in the least inclined to surrender its authority over the country. Nor are we aware that any demand has been made, either by the French Emperor or by the Triumvirate which his armies have installed into power at Mexico, upon the Government at Washington that we should recognize the new order of things or cease to maintain diplomatic relations with the Government which they claim to have superseded. And until we have some such official communication from some quarter or other, we do not well see how we can be called on or expected to take any action in the premises. All we have done up to the present time, so far as the public has any knowledge on the subject, has been to ignore the presence of the French authority in Mexico, and to maintain the same relations as hitherto with the only Government of the country which we have ever recognized.

When we are called upon to recognize the new order of things, it will be quite time to decide upon the course of conduct which it becomes us to adopt. We certainly cannot recognize any Government which the French may seek to impose upon the people of Mexico, so long as that effort is resisted with any degree of vigor and courage by any considerable portion of the Mexican people. In that respect we hold the same position toward Mexico which France holds toward us ; and while we demand that France shall not recognize the Southern Confederacy so long as our Government maintains and prosecutes the determination to crush the rebellion on which it rests, we must also refuse any premature recognition of any new régime in Mexico. It does not seem, moreover, to be as yet by any means settled what will be the character of the new Mexican Government. Prince Maximilian, according to the latest advices, consents to accept the throne only upon certain guarantees of its stability from the leading Powers of Europe, which one or two of them seem scarcely likely to give. Before the matter is finally settled, we presume that the assent of the United States will be solicited to any plan which may be resolved upon,—as neither France nor Austria would be likely to undervalue the importance of our assent to the permanence of any arrangement which they might desire to make. And when that assent is asked, our Government will have an opportunity, which it will doubtless embrace, to discuss the whole question in all its bearings.

Meantime, it need not be forgotten that the French Government has disclaimed, in the most distinct and formal manner, all thought or intention of any permanent occupation of Mexico, or of imposing upon the country any government to which the great body of her people may be hostile. It is not to be hastily assumed that France desires or intends to repudiate these pledges. Such flagrant perfidy always involves a certain loss of national character and position with other Powers, which is precisely the loss which France cannot just now afford to incur. Nor need it be supposed that either the United States or England, who are almost equally interested in the redemption of those pledges, is forgetful of their existence, or will prove indifferent to their fulfillment.

We do not credit the rumor that our Government has protested against the movements of the French in Mexico. It seems to us much more likely, as our Paris correspondent suggests, that we have done nothing whatever on the subject,—that no occasion has yet arisen for our diplomatic intervention, and that President Lincoln will await further developments before he feels called upon to take any action whatever in the premises.

The Path of Peace—How is the War to End?

The Peace party at the North is constantly calling on the Government to suspend hostilities and open negotiations with the Confederate authorities for the termination of the war. President Lincoln is constantly assailed for having repelled overtures of this sort from the rebel Government, although as a matter of fact no such overtures have ever been made. But even if they had, it is not easy to see how they could have been accepted or entertained without surrendering the whole question at issue.

The following extract from the very able article which we copied last week from the Raleigh (N. C.) Standard, puts this matter in a very clear and forcible light :

"The Observer, very ingeniously and very justly, in one sense, says that negotiations for peace can be instituted only through the Confederate Government. But we must look at things as they are, and not as we would have them. If Mr. Lincoln should so far recognize Mr. Davis as to open negotiations with him, he would surrender the whole question of the war. To treat with the Confederate Government for peace is to recognize that Government. Will Mr. Lincoln do that? No. Will he ever do it? Not unless the Northern Governors and Legislatures shall rise up and command him to do it. Is that probable? Not in the present status of things. We may worry the Northern people to such a point, or we might so interest foreign Powers as to induce them to take steps which would lead to such a result ; but are these things probable? Not just now—not, we fear, for some time to come. What then? Shall we again invade the Northern States, and so distress them by fire and sword as to compel them to sue for peace? Can we do that? If the Federal Government will not hear the Confederate Government, it may hear the sovereign States. The people of the States North and South, by mutual coöperation may obtain an armistice. If that can be done, the war will be at an end. Is it not worth the trial? If the two armies should once rest to listen to the voice of negotiation, our word for it, hostilities would not be resumed. The whole question would pass, and pass finally, into the hands of the statesmen of the two sections."

We commend this paragraph to the attention of the Peace party. It comes from a quarter which entitles it to respect, and it ought to have special weight with those who clamor for negotiation with the rebel authorities as the initial step toward restoring peace and the Union. "To treat with the Confederate Government for peace," says the Standard, itself a Confederate journal, "is to recognize that Government." Is not this perfectly evident? We might, to be sure, deny any such recognition, and expressly stipulate that we dealt with them only as rebels and not as an organized Government ; but any such protest would simply defeat the negotiation and render it impossible. If we treat with Jeff. Davis in any way whatever concerning the future relations of the rebel States to the Union, we acknowledge his rightful authority to speak for those States : we recognize him as the representative head of the people of those States,—as wielding their power and embodying their will, and what is this but a recognition of his Government? If we were to send a Minister or an agent of any sort to negotiate with Davis, on any subject beyond the details of military operations in the field, or if we were to receive any agent he might send, England and France would have the warrant of our example for doing the same. If we should receive Mr. Stephens, England might receive Mr. Mason and France might receive Mr. Slidell, and we could make no just or effective protest against it.

Our position is, that the war is a rebellion, and that the only possible way of ending it is by putting that rebellion down, or, by its success. We can have nothing whatever to do with it as an organized Government, for the moment we accept it as such we lose all right to treat it as a rebellion. We must then treat the South as a foreign Power, and the war becomes a foreign war. On such a basis the only hope of restoring the Union lies in the absolute conquest and subjugation of the Southern people.

How, then, can peace be restored? As the Standard suggests, by the action of the people in the rebel States. Let them demand peace, and they will get it. Let them repudiate the authority of the rebel usurpation, and take the control of affairs into their own hands, and they will very speedily end the war. Let them send to Washington men representing their wishes, and authorized to speak on their behalf, and they will have no difficulty in securing for them not only a hearing, but through them all the rights and immunities guaranteed by the Constitution of the United States.

The Sabine Pass Affair.—The Texas Expedition will not be baulked for any length of time by the unfortunate repulse of our three gunboats at Sabine Pass. We are astonished, however, that a more accurate knowledge was not obtained of the ground in the vicinity of the mouth of the Sabine River before the troops, transports and gunboats were sent from New-Orleans. It is said that, "on arriving at the spot on which our troops were destined to land, it was found impossible to effect anything, owing to the marshy nature of the ground and the excessively shallow water." Now we have had blockading vessels cruising off the mouth of the Sabine River for two years, and we should think that during that time reconnoissances might have been made that would have established the depth of water and the nature of the soil in the vicinity. Not only have we had blockaders there, but Sabine Pass itself was held by our forces for a time last year, and all the needed knowledge must, or should, then have been acquired. This repulse has not only compelled Gen. Franklin and his troops to put back to New-Orleans, but has given the enemy a knowledge of our plans, and of the point from which our forces were to operate, which had been kept so carefully secret prior to the departure of the expedition. The rebels will now, of course, go to work erecting earthworks and other defences at all the approaches to Sabine Pass and River, and we know by experience the labor and difficulty of overcoming well-devised, even though hastily constructed, earthworks. The fact, too, that the rebels have gained this initial success will greatly encourage them, and will procure them many recruits from Texas, which has yet a large fighting force within its borders. It is probable that this repulse will soon compel our army to find some other landing point from which to prosecute operations against Texas.

The Battle in Georgia.

Gen. Rosecrans has again met the enemy, whom he fought and defeated at the opening of the year, and whom he has been pursuing for the past three months, for the purpose of fetching to the test of battle. It has been an unaccountable mystery why Gen. Bragg should have executed such a series of retreats as he has carried his army through since it occupied Murfreesboro—why he should have evacuated in succession points of such vast natural and artificial strength as Shelbyville, Tullahoma, and especially Chattanooga? The reason, however, was probably simply because, though his positions were very strong, his army was not of sufficient magnitude and courage to cope with the well-trained Western legions that Gen. Rosecrans marched upon him. Had Rosecrans attacked him in front of any of the positions named, Bragg, with his advantages, might have had a show of success ; but the flanking movement so skillfully executed by Gen. Rosecrans in each instance, necessitated that Bragg should come forth from his stronghold and give battle on ground where his acquired advantages availed him nothing.

At last, however, in the evacuation of Chattanooga, Bragg had got to a point in his retreats when further backward movement was destruction. To have retreated from Rome or Atlanta would have been to give up Alabama, Mississippi and Upper Georgia, and would have given us a pass to the important parts of the Carolinas sloping from the Alleghanies. Bragg and all his army knew this—Jeff. Davis and the whole Confederacy knew it. Hence, as a matter of necessity, Bragg halted his columns but a short distance south of Chattanooga, and Davis made haste to reinforce him from West and East. The army of Joe Johnston, which, since its defeat at the capital of Mississippi, had been unable to subserve any military purpose, and had wandered from one point to another, was brought up to Georgia from its latest camping ground on the Tombigbee, and attached to Bragg's force. The corps of Longstreet, or, if not exclusively his corps, a large force from the army of Gen. Lee, was hastened westward from Virginia, and combined with Bragg's and Johnston's armies. The considerable force under Buckner, which retreated from East Tennessee, before Gen. Burnside, was consolidated with the rest, and doubtless all the other detachments of infantry and cavalry that have been roaming and operating throughout the Southwest, were hastened forward at the critical moment to the critical point. With all these bodies and reinforcements, a very large and formidable army was mustered to confront the Army of the Cumberland.

The rebels began the attack on Rosecrans' army, the lines of which were established along Chicamauga Creek, a short distance south of Chattanooga, shortly before noon on Saturday. They adopted the style of tactics which they have so often practiced with success—massing their troops, and attacking with fury, in succession, the different corps of our army, forcing its wings and centre. In each attack they seem to have been temporarily successful, but only temporarily, for, at nightfall, our lines were reëstablished as they had been before the battle began, and Gen. Rosecrans held his ground, having severely punished the rebels.

Gen. Rosecrans has telegraphed to Washington that he anticipated that the battle would be renewed yesterday, and another dispatch represents our men as in the best of spirits and eager to begin the fight anew. The rebels, undoubtedly, attacked on Saturday with the whole of their force, as this is the policy which they have universally pursued, when they had the initiative in the action, and their failure in the first day augurs ill for their success yesterday. There has been no instance in the war in which the rebels, foiled in the first day of the battle, retrieved their fortunes on the day succeeding. And they were even less likely than usual to succeed on this occasion against the hero who, at Murfreesboro, wrenched victory from the very jaws of defeat.

Railroad Facilities to the Suburban Districts.—We understand that the Hudson River Railroad Company intend to lay a third track from this City to Yonkers for the exclusive use of persons traveling between those two points. It is also designed to have trains run each way every half hour and to be drawn by dummy engines to Chambers-street. We cannot help thinking that both the Harlem and New-Haven roads would consult their own interest, as they would certainly promote that of the public, by adopting a similar system. Hitherto neither of these roads has given any special attention to the development of that kind of local business which depends for its growth on a close and constant connection with the City. Every railroad leading into London takes special pains to give every possible facility to persons who wish to live out of the City while doing business in it. They all run trains every half hour, and some of them at certain times of the day even oftener. The result is that the whole region for twenty or thirty miles around London is simply a suburb of the metropolis, and the roads reap the benefit of the enormous business they have thus created. To a certain extent the Hudson River Railroad has done the same thing. As the facilities it has afforded have increased year after year, the region traversed by it has become more and more densely settled, and the local business thus developed has increased in magnitude and in profit. To such an extent is this true, that more than three-fourths of the enormous increase in business which the road has experienced during the present season, has taken place in its local traffic,—and as this is never to any great degree affected by great questions of public policy, it is evidently by far the most stable and desirable portion of the business of any road. The section of country bordering the Sound and the region traversed by the Harlem road, though differing in the nature of their attractions from that upon the Hudson River, have a beauty of their own which meets the taste and the wants of many people even better still ; and if the Railroad Companies would take equal pains with the Hudson River road to facilitate access to them, we do not see why they should not be built up and settled with equal rapidity.

Important Decision.—We publish this morning a decision of Judge Nelson, sitting in the United States Circuit Court, at Cooperstown, in a habeas corpus case, which is of interest and importance to all the Boards of Enrolling Officers, and to all who may appear before them. It seems that a drafted man was claimed to be exempt as the elected son of a widow, and on application to the Board of Enrollment the claim was allowed, and an endorsement to that effect was made on the papers, and the man was declared by the Board to be exempt. Some days after, however, they reconsidered the claim and disallowed it and held the man. The case was brought before Judge Nelson, and he decided that the Board having once made a decision in the case, had exhausted its powers and its further action was void. He accordingly discharged the man.

It is important that all Enrolling Boards should bear this decision in mind and govern themselves accordingly. It is all the more important since the suspension of the habeas corpus. That suspension is an unpleasant thing, and we trust the Enrolling Boards, and all officers of the Government, will do everything in their power to make it as little burdensome as possible.

NEWS FROM WASHINGTON.

SPECIAL DISPATCH FROM WASHINGTON.
Washington, Sunday, Sept. 20.

LEE'S ARMY.

There is no doubt that Longstreet's corps has gone South. Lee's present force is estimated by general officers at not over 35,000 or 40,000 men, stretching from the Rapidan River to Charlottesville. Deserters say Longstreet took with him about 18,000 men.

A CAVALRY EXPEDITION.

Yesterday a portion of Gen. Buford's command swam the Rapidan in the neighborhood of Raccoon Ford. The expedition returned safely with a considerable number of prisoners. An Indiana cavalryman coming across five rebels boldly charged upon the party and succeeded in capturing a rebel Lieutenant and routing the others.

THE ANGLO-REBEL RAMS.

Private information received here from England by parties occupying high positions, is to the effect that the rebel rams will not be permitted to leave English ports unless accompanied by British war vessels, and the rams will not be allowed to mount guns. If allowed to sail at all, they will be taken to some French port, to be delivered to their real owners, who are Frenchmen.

GUERRILLA OPERATIONS.

The guerrillas profit by every movement of our army. They watch every opportunity with eagle eyes. No sooner had our old camps become vacant than the guerrillas pounced upon the sutlers and stragglers remaining. On Thursday a band of forty robbed a party of sutlers and citizens at a house four miles from Bealeton Station of $4,000 in money and $6,000 in goods. They took gold watches, valuables and even the hats off their victims' heads, and then dashed such relics as a mother's miniature into the mud with vile curses. The same day a party of eight came down to the railroad between Bristol and Catlett's Station, and captured three sutlers' wagons which were passing along, right from under the noses of the railroad guard. The country on both sides of Manassas Junction is now thoroughly infested with guerrillas, or rather citizens turned highway robbers.

AN AMBASSADOR FROM MEXICO.

Gen. Cortes, a prominent Liberal in Mexico, arrived in the city yesterday, on a special and important mission from the Juarez authorities to the Government here, and presented his credentials at the State Department to-day. Mr. Cortes does not replace Señor Romero, who is still the representative of the Juarez Government at Washington, although now temporarily absent in Mexico.

Señor Corpancho, the Peruvian Minister at Mexico, is expected in this City in a day or two. He received his passports from the Forey Junta, accompanied with a request to leave the City of Mexico in twenty-four hours.

THE CAVALRY HORSES.

It is no more than justice to the Cavalry Bureau, and its efficient chief, Gen. Stoneman, to say that no horses have as yet been purchased by that office. The horses which are now being issued are those purchased under old contracts from "carrion dealers," and if they are worthless, as represented, it is no fault of the Cavalry Bureau. All the old stock, including large numbers of horses scattered through Maryland on pasturage, will be issued before fresh purchases are made.

James S. Grinnell, the active and assiduous Chief Clerk of the Agricultural Department, has gone North for a short vacation.

William A. Nichols, of Indiana, has been appointed Commissary, with the rank of Captain.

THE NEW NATIONAL BANK NOTES.

It is expected that the new National Bank notes will be ready for delivery by the 15th of October. The 5s and 10s are being printed by the Continental Engraving Company, and the 100s and 50s by the American Company.

GEN. HAUPT.

The simple statement that this officer has been relieved and his commission revoked, is calculated to give an incorrect impression. Important private interests demand a portion of his time, and he has therefore uniformly declined to accept the commission of Brigadier-General which was tendered him. Being informed by the Secretary of War, that unless he sent in his acceptance by a given time the position which he held would be considered vacated, he was still compelled to decline, and expressed a wish to retire. He was therefore relieved by the Secretary.

THE TERRITORY OF DACOTAH.

The annual report of the Surveyor General of Dacotah Territory has been received at the General Land office. The settlement of the Territory being in a measure retarded, in view of apprehended Indian disturbances, it has been suggested that a military force be located at different points within the Territory until the settlers of the threatened region are in sufficient numbers to protect themselves.

SICK AND WOUNDED REGULARS.

A special order of the War Department, directs that the sick and wounded men of the regiments named below, and those who may hereafter require medical treatment, be forwarded to the places herein indicated, viz. :

The Second, Third, Fourth, Sixth, Seventh, Eighth, Ninth and Tenth U. S. Infantry, to Fort Columbus, New-York.

The First U. S. artillery, serving in the Army of the Potomac, Department of Virginia and North Carolina, Department of the South, and the Department of the Gulf, to Fort Independence, Boston Harbor.

The Third U. S. artillery, serving as above, to Fort Trumbull, Connecticut.

The Fourth U. S. artillery, serving as above, to Fort Washington, Maryland.

The Fifth U. S. artillery, serving as above, to Fort Hamilton, New-York.

The First, Second, Fifth and Sixth U. S. cavalry, to Carlisle Barracks, Pennsylvania.

The regular regiments serving in the Department of the Cumberland, to Camp Chase, Ohio.

The regular regiments serving in the Department of the Tennessee, to Newport Barracks, Kentucky.

The Eleventh U. S. infantry, to Fort Independence, Boston Harbor.

The Twelfth U. S. infantry, to Fort Hamilton, New-York Harbor.

The Fourteenth U. S. infantry, to Fort Trumbull, Connecticut.

The Seventeenth U. S. infantry, to Fort Preble, Maine.

DISPATCHES TO THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
Washington, Sunday, Sept. 20.

THE "GOVERNMENT BANK."

It is proper that the public should be cautioned against bills purporting to be upon the "Government Bank," which unprincipled persons are attempting to put into circulation. They are dated at Washington, and purporting to be payable on demand, and being of a greenish color they are liable to be mistaken by the unwary for the old issue of United States notes, most of which have been redeemed and canceled by the Treasury Department. It is said that they have been passed quite extensively about New-York. No such bank exists. An office with the sign "Government Bank" over the door was some time ago closed by the Provost-Marshal of the War Department.

TREASURY NOTES UNDER A FIERY ORDEAL.

Since the conflagration at Lawrence, Kansas, eight or nine packages of notes have been sent to the Treasury to be exchanged for others. They had been subjected to the fire, but were not injured beyond identification. It seems that the chemicals employed on these notes form a coating which affords a partial protection from fire.

CONCERNING THE POSTAGE CURRENCY.

It has been ascertained that of the 50 cent postage currency there are nine different counterfeits, of the 25s and 10s two each, and of the 5s one. Besides this there is much mutilation of this currency, the fragments of which are pasted together and used by those whose gains would be at least equal if their labor was devoted to honest toil.

The present postage currency is coming into the Treasury at the rate of $50,000 per day ; and about two millions of the twenty millions of dollars issued have already been received. The fifty and twenty-five cent notes will be withdrawn, and the new and improved issues will soon begin to take their place. The withdrawal of the fives and tens will be more gradual. All the notes returned are counted in the Treasurer's office, put in packages of ten dollars, and then cut in halves by a machine ; subsequently each parcel of halves is counted by different persons ; thus the pile receives three different countings. All precautions against errors are adopted. About thirty young ladies, together with male clerks, are employed at this business, under the direction of Gen. Spinner, the Treasurer of the United States, whose efficiency and application are extraordinary, and who has been known to work during last year seventeen hours per day, with only occasional deviations.

DEPREDATIONS OF GUERRILLAS.

Guerrillas still infest the southern side of the Potomac, occasionally capturing sutlers' property. Such was the case on Thursday, when thirteen horses and three full wagons, together with five men, fell into the hands of fifteen uniformed guerrillas, commanded by Capt. Stringfellow, while on the way from Catlett's to Bristow Station. These teams had become separated from the few others in the train, when the robbers suddenly approached from the woods, and, with pistol in hand, seized and drove them beyond the possibility of capture. A negro driver was fired at three times by one of the desperadoes, but escaped unhurt, owing to his activity in dodging the shots. A Lieutenant being with the train, and in proximity to the guerrillas, after exchanging pistol discharges with them, ran off for assistance, and while he was returning, at the head of a portion of infantry of the railroad guard, the guerrillas quickly mounted their horses and left the scene of plunder. This conduct of the United States officer saved another valuable team which the rebels had prepared to steal, and were in the act of driving away. The five prisoners have returned, having been stripped of nearly all their clothing, including their hats and boots. The only safety to sutlers is with a cavalry guard.

ASSISTANT SECRETARY HARRINGTON.

Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Harrington has left Washington to embark for Europe, he having obtained two months additional leave of absence. This trip is in no manner connected with public business, but solely for the benefit of his health, which has been impaired by close application to business night and day. The gentlemen connected with the department yesterday afternoon took farewell of this truly efficient officer.

During his absence, Mr. Hartley, Chief Clerk of the Treasury Department, will assume the duties of the position.

THE FUNDS ON BOARD THE RUTH.

The Treasurer of the United States has recently received additional evidence that the two millions for the pay of Gen. Grant's army were actually on board the steamer Ruth at the time of the fire. Much of the money has been recovered in a charred condition, and a commission has been appointed to extend the search for the portion still missing.

MEDICAL ORDERS.

Surgeon-General's Office,
Washington City, D. C., Sept. 12, 1863.

Circular No. 16.—The attention of all Medical Directors is especially called to paragraph 169, Revised United States Regulations, and section 2, General Orders, No. 98, dated Headquarters of the Army, Adjutant-General's Office, Nov. 13, 1861, in regard to the disposition to be made of "insane soldiers."

No insane soldier can be discharged the service on Surgeon's certificate of disability.

JOS. K. BARNES, Acting Surgeon-General.

Surgeon-General's Office.
Washington City, D. C., Sept. 14, 1863.

Circular No. 17.—Medical Directors are hereby instructed that, in obedience to an order from the War Department, all enlisted men of the regular regiments, excepting Hospital Stewards, now employed in hospitals, must be at once sent to their respective regiments. By order.

CHAS. S. CRANE, Surgeon U. S. Army.

Note From the Spingler House.

To the Editor of the New-York Times :

A statement appeared in this morning's Times regarding an alleged act of ill-treatment toward a maimed Union volunteer in the bar-room of the Spingler House. Having satisfied myself that there is no foundation for such a statement, I ask you to give this note as prominent a place in your journal as you gave the above-named article.

A scene such as represented would of course have been most disgraceful. No man could have witnessed it without a blush of shame.

The visitors of this place would most certainly be the last to aid in such an ungentlemenly and unmanly act—nor would the proprietor countenance it.

Respectfully yours, J. F. W.

Sunday, Sept. 20.

An Often Answered Query.

Catskill, Thursday, Sept. 17, 1863.

To the Editor of the New-York Times :

Will you be kind enough to inform me, through the columns of your paper, whether, if a person is drafted to serve in the United States service for three years, and pays $300, he is liable to be drafted again until the expiration of the three years.

Very respectfully, yours, W. H. R.

[We are in constant receipt of so many queries to the above effect that we may repeat again what we have already said, that there has been a decision of the Provost-Marshal-General to the effect that the payment of $300 does not exempt a person from the operation of a future draft, but the furnishing of a substitute does so exempt him.—Ed. Times.]

Amusements.

Mr. Edwin Booth will commence an engagement at the Winter Garden to-night, appearing—according to his usual custom—as Hamlet. An excellent company has been secured for the purpose of lending due assistance to the young tragedian. Mr. J. H. Davenport has been appointed stage manager—a position which his energetic nature fits him for excellently. Mr. Booth's last engagement at this house was interrupted—it will be remembered—by a domestic affliction that compelled him at once to seek rest and oblivion in retirement. His return to the stage will, we are persuaded, be hailed with satisfaction by all true lovers of the drama.

Mr. Forrest will repeat his remarkably fine impersonation of Othello to-night. The play was revived on Friday, and received, of course, with the usual favor by the public. Mr. Forrest's repertoire is so extensive that he does not find it practicable to repeat any one piece more than a couple of times. Hence to-night is the last performance of "Othello."

Wallack's Theatre will open on the 26th; for the present it is closed. The Olympic (Mrs. John Wood's) is rapidly progressing toward completion, and will open about the same time.

The Park Theatre, of Brooklyn, appears to be a success in every point of view; the houses have been crowded and the pieces have been received with favor. To-night, Planché's extravaganza entitled "Beauty and the Beast" will be revived, with new scenery, dresses, &c. The performances commence with the comedy of "Faint Heart Never Won Fair Lady."

At Barnum's Museum, the new Ghost piece called "Brunhilda" will be played day and night until further notice.

At the Alhambra Pavilion a new and remarkable artist on the trapeze, called Young Nicolo, will make his debut to-day. He is the best of that kind we have yet had. Mlle. Sophie Saggino, who has recently been added to this company, is one of the most graceful and accomplished equestriennes in the world.

When the Stereopticon withdraws from Irving Hall, the City will have lost one of its most agreeable, legitimate and artistic sources of amusement. This event, we are sorry to learn, will take place on Saturday next—the Hall being required for Mr. Gottschalk's concerts on the following Monday. We advise every one, without exception, to economise the interval, and pay as many visits to the Stereopticon as possible. It is one of the few exhibitions that may be praised unqualifiedly.

Mme. Medori has arrived in this City from Europe, thereby completing Mr. Maretzek's admirable troupe for the coming season, which will open on Monday, the 5th, with Donizetti's opera of "Roberto Devereux." The lady is in fine health and spirits, regarding New-York with especial favor as the scene of some of her best triumphs. A serenade was gotten up in her honor by the band of the Academy of Music, at which several fire companies took part. What mystic relation is there between a red shirt and a prima donna that the two on such occasions are invariably found together?

Agnes Robertson (Mrs. Dion Boucicault) will visit this country on a professional tour during the present Winter. She opens in Boston for four weeks on Dec. 28; follows at Philadelphia for two weeks on Jan. 25, and at Baltimore and Washington on Feb. 8 for four weeks. The lady leaves England on Oct. 14, and will endeavor to play in New-York previous to entering on any of the above engagements. It is doubtful, however, if she will be able to find an establishment suitable for her purpose, or where there are yet vacancies in the list of "stars." It is said that Mrs. Boucicault will come provided with a new drama by her husband.

The steamer Hammonia, from Hamburg, due to-day, will bring the members of Mr. Anschutz' new German opera company. The following is a list of the principal artists: Tenor robusto, Mr. Himmer, from Berlin; Lyric tenor, Mr. Haller, from Brunswick; Basso, Mr. Remy, from Vienna; Buffo Basso, Mr. Haimer, from Vienna; Soprani, Mme. Himmer-Friedrici, from Berlin; Mme. Johannsen; Soubrettes, Mlle. Pauline Canissa, from Vienna, and Mlle. Lang, from Pesth. In the second parts Mde. Bernard and Mlle. Drome will lend their assistance, and Messrs. Graff and Kronfeld have been added to the male forces. There will be a full ballet under the direction of Mr. Dennstaedt, new scenery from the brush of a celebrated European artist, whose name is Nicola Meister, and an entirely new wardrobe by J. Stollwerk. We have already spoken of the chorus. It is one of the best in point of precision that we have ever had in this City. The orchestra will, of course, be up to the highest standard Mr. Anschutz will give two or three performances in this City during the coming week, for the purpose of introducing his principal artists. He will then proceed to Baltimore, Washington, Philadelphia and Boston, returning to New-York in December. His season in the Metropolis will run through three months, and will be characterized by the greatest activity.

Mr. Bandmann, the German tragedian, will play on Wednesday of the present week, instead of Tuesday—his regular night. Mr. Forrest has very kindly consented to change nights with Mr. B., in order to accommodate that gentleman.

Mr. Cooke, the veteran orchestra conductor, goes to the Winter Garden to fill the post recently vacated by Mr. E. Mollenhauer, who has accepted the position of conductor at Wallack's Theatre.

Mr. Robert Stoepel, the well-known composer, has resigned his bâton as chief of Mr. Wallace's orchestra. The loss is one which a less elegant establishment could better afford. Mr. Stoepel's powers were far beyond any of the trivial requisites of a theatre, but in the incidental music that he supplied to Mr. Wallack he displayed a facility that was as graceful as it was unpretentious. At a time when the City was infested with conductors whose sole ambition was to make noise and invent vulgarities, he persisted in maintaining the highest possible standard of incidental music, and resisted, with the feeling of a thorough musician, all extraneous means of producing a little cheap applause. His original pieces and arrangements were characterized by freshness and thorough knowledge of the legitimate resources of the various instruments at his command. He was incapable of writing trash, and hence he was by no means a "sensation" conductor; but the select few, who in such matters constitute the only public opinion worth consulting, knew that his lightest trifle was meritorious in every art sense, and very different from what could be found elsewhere. The orchestra at Wallack's indeed was an exception to all other orchestras, and we shall be greatly mistaken if Mr. Stoepel's resignation does not for the future deprive it of this distinction. In the meantime it may be interesting to the public to hear that the lyric poem of "Hiawatha" by Mr. Stoepel will shortly be produced at Irving Hall, with grand orchestra and chorus. Matilda Heron will recite Longfellow's poem.

Mr. R. J. De Cordova whose humorous lectures have become as essential to the season as any of the other comforts of life, has effected a settlement this year at Irving Hall, and will commence a series of entertainments there so soon as the weather is bracing enough to enable the public to stand them.

Artemus Ward, the well-known humorist and lecturer, leaves for California by the overland route the first week in October. A golden ghost, it is said, has beckoned him to the auriferous regions.

Suggestions for the Crisis.

Camp Dix, on Fifth-avenue, September, 1863.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

"Veteran Observer," of the "Beeches," has furnished some good reading for your paper. For logic and polish I will not attempt to emulate him, but for logical deductions and effective hits, I claim to rank him even in this my first attempt at paragraph gunnery.

A Review.—The Jeff. Davis crew went into secession for the purpose of securing and enlarging Slavery. This is admitted by both North and South. The destruction of Slavery is the consequence. Slavery was a safe institution; it is now among the dissolving views. Thus manifest destiny works out the very reverse to what aspiring men had planned.

2. England and France combined to destroy the growth and power of this country, by giving aid and comfort to the rebellion, and the European organs of the crowned heads of the Old Country have so often informed the world that the United States was divided, broken up, destroyed—that we may expect to see several searchers after kingdoms among us, to rule over us with the Spring emigration.

3. Manifest destiny again reverses all human calculation. This country has but begun to wield its power, and it appears to me a war with some staggering old nation is what destiny has in store for us, that European wisdom may be confounded. The monarchs of Europe have worked against Heaven in siding with the rebellion, and retribution is, or will be, their reward.

This is an era of reverse results from planned results.

4. The Copperhead Democrats of this State thought, or pretended to think, that to preserve State Rights it was necessary to make political war on the General Government. What is the result? The General Government is here to execute the laws, enforce the laws; and I find that the merchant princes, bankers, and, in fact, every grade of society, except the Copperhead class, are glad that we United States soldiers are making a Government here too strong for any Copperhead comfort. It was not necessary that we should come here; but short-sighted political hacks set up the cry that no Federal power was to be tolerated in the Empire State. Have the Copperheads preserved or have they damaged "State Rights," and will they now let us depart for the seat of war, or will they make it necessary that we be kept here? In short, will they be blind and mad enough to force the Government to override local usurpation in self-defence? In doing so Gov. Seymour and his crew would be no blinder nor madder than Jeff. Davis was to get into a war to preserve the institution of Slavery.

In a great many smaller things men's schemes have been reversed. The very opposite of their calculations is new matter of history. I have said enough to set even "Commanders-in-Chief" in a brown study.

You will hear from me again if Camp Dix, on Fifth-avenue, does not strike its tents and march away before long.

SURGICAL AND PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS ON THE
DISEASES OF THE EAR, WITH THE
NEW MODE OF TREATING DEAFNESS
TO WHICH IS ADDED AN APPENDIX,
Containing a Treatise on Catarrh and the New System of Treating it.
BY J. E. VON EISENBERG, M. D. of No. 816 Broadway.

Having thus generally described the diseases to which this exquisitely formed organ is liable—and which are the destruction of the necessary performance of those functions which we find available for all the purposes for which that organ was constructed in the economy of nature. Young people seldom discover that they hear imperfectly until about the age of puberty, or when they begin to use the organ of hearing in earnest. Many persons reach the age of thirty or forty years before they have any notion that they are deaf. They may have suspected that they did not hear across the street, or the minister, or at the theatre, quite so plainly as other people, and they are surprised to find that their neighbors hear every word and they do not. Then they become conscious that they do not hear as well as everybody: but they had no idea that they were the subjects of any defect in their hearing, or that their hearing could be improved.

Although deafness is, in general, gradual in its progress, manifesting itself about the period of puberty, and increasing from that period up to twenty or twenty-five years of age, yet instances occasionally occur of the impediment in hearing existing in children, or of the sudden loss of the hearing of a grown-up person who had previously heard distinctly at an ordinary distance. When children, about the period of being sent to school, are supposed not to catch sounds quite as quickly as they should, we should then make a careful examination of the organ, so as to find the cause why the sound, in conveying information to the Sensorium, is impeded. It is a vulgar error that an imperfect hearing is, by age, rendered better calculated to hear at a distance than it was in youth. This opinion appears to have been built on the following false analogy—viz.: that those who possess an ordinarily good hearing became, from some of those changes in the structure of the organ of hearing which we have before pointed out, more acute as they approached old age, which is a well-established fact. But this change is a sure indication of the total loss of hearing, as the meatus auditorius is then so delicate that it receives the sound quickly, with a vibration concentrated by the auricle, which conveys the sound to the Membrana Tympani. There are facts enough to prove that if we even do possess the power of removing the disease, so that the hearing faculty may resume its normal functions, yet the reproduction of the parts by nature already destroyed by the disease is, in mature years, uncertain and slow, as the reparative power is greater, most particularly in the organ of which I am treating, in the young than in those individuals of more advanced years. Even when we compare patients that have all attained their highest development and growth, this seems to be natural. We know it from general observations of the results of injuries from such diseases of the Ear in persons of different ages; numerous as the exceptions may be, as a general rule it appears true.

All these facts agree well with the belief that the formative power is gradually diminished in the acts of organizing matter for the maintenance of the function of perfect hearing, and the difference between the completeness of reproduction of injured parts in children and that in adults appears so much greater than the difference in adults of different ages, that it is probable the formative power is more diminished by growth than it is by the mere maintenance. To reproduce an injured part requires perfection of formative power. The best example we can give to illustrate that early attention to the slightest impediment in hearing should not be neglected or deferred, is the following, from a lecture delivered at the Royal College of Surgeons of England, by Prof. James Paget. He says: "That he removed an arterial erectile tumor from the External Ear, which occupied the adjacent subcutaneous tissues and part of the scalp. The back of the Auricle, and nearly the whole extent, was puffed by a superficial swelling." It is manifest, according to this eminent anatomist's own illustration, that it could have been easily removed if it had been treated and removed in an earlier stage, for he further states that—"This disease had been noticed like a very small pimple, when the patient was young. It had, from that time, regularly increased. The tumor was gorged with blood, consisting of small vessels collected in a soft, spongy mass. This was especially observed in the auricular artery." Another similar case the same learned professor speaks of as being recorded by Mr. Cooze, being also a large tumor of the Ear. We may trace half of the deaf in this country to the want of being checked by early attention, when a little care will do it. Indeed, after looking into a vast number of volumes from the pens of the experienced and skillful medical writers, my opinion is confirmed, that if attention were paid in infancy to the slightest defect in hearing, we should have none of those obstinate or incurable cases which sometimes baffle the most skillful Aurist. I have no hesitation in stating that it is our bounden duty to instill into the minds of those who wish to enjoy the happy privilege of hearing, that it is absolutely necessary for deaf persons never to suffer themselves to be scared away from social intercourse because they cannot participate in conversation with that facility which their more fortunate brethren enjoy.

The matchless forms of sculptured beauty which the destroying hand of time has left us in the works of the mighty masters of the classic time, exhibit to us the finest specimens of the Ear. We are immediately struck with the delicacy with which the exterior Ear is organised, both for the conveyance of sound to the brain, and its protection from escape, as well as an exquisite addition to the face, which would otherwise appear long and monotonous. Its shell-like, undulating form, seems to have been the result of the examination of the most perfect human models; but we must not forget, altogether, the Hand which made the small organ upon whose perfect organisation depends much of the happiness of man; and were a mechanic found who could imitate this most wonderful little organ, he would be a subject of much surprise and admiration, and he would be rewarded for his skill and ingenuity. We are loud in our expressions of admiration of the wondrous melodies of the accomplished cantatrice. We quit the opera-house with a feeling of joy, and the song we liked most still seems to ring in our Ears; but we forget the marvelous construction of the little fabric which conveys to us the extraordinary performances. If we derive so much happiness and pleasure from the perfection of this little organ, how much misery do we find when we are unfortunate enough to be deprived of its pleasing and useful functions? We, therefore, while it is in our reach, ought to endeavor to take every precaution for its preservation and protection.

To give the causes of the disease which I have enumerated, there are many minutiæ upon which there is little occasion to dwell. If I may become the means only of arresting the attention to proper precautions, thereby avoiding many of those life-long sufferings to which the deaf are subject, I would consider the time I have employed in compiling these sheets not thrown away, nor regret that I have ventured to become an author.

Itard says "that the shape of the Auricle is well adapted to receive and concentrate sounds, and direct them to the meatus." It is supposed that, from this circumstance, the tyrant Dionysius, of Syracuse, had constructed a subterraneous cavern in a rock, in the form of the Human Ear, which measured eighty feet in height and two hundred and fifty-feet in length. The sounds of this cave were necessarily directed to a common tympanum, communicating with an adjoining room, where Dionysius spent the greater part of his time to listen to whatever was said by those whom his suspicions and cruelty had confined in the apartments above.

An Excursion to Labrador.—The schooner Nelly Baker arrived here this morning from Labrador, with a party consisting of eighteen, who left this city eight weeks ago on a pleasure trip to Labrador. Capt. John Dodge, of Hampton Falls, was the leader of the expedition, and among the members of it are the well known artist, Mr. Wm. Bradford, and Mr. Catchereson, the skilful photographer. Mr. Bradford—from whom we have gathered a brief account of the voyage—went, accompanied by Mr. Catchereson, for the purpose of obtaining studies and photographic views of the icebergs and of the natural scenery along the coast. They called up the Northwest River, and as far up the coast as 55 deg. north latitude. They met a number of Esquimaux, by whom they were kindly treated.

They also saw the Nescopie and Mountaineer Indians. Mr. Bradford considers the Nescopies by far the finest body of people they met. They succeeded in taking, with great success, a number of views of these people; also scenes descriptive of their mode of living. Mr. Bradford and Mr. Catchereson were peculiarly fortunate in their endeavors to secure good copies of the icebergs and northern lights. Their photographic apparatus worked to a charm, and fine impressions were obtained by Mr. Catchereson. The surrounding scenery, as surveyed from the Mealee Mountains, Mr. Bradford speaks of as indescribably grand. The success of their voyage had exceeded anything they had anticipated. The weather was unusually favorable for their purposes, and the artists made the most of every auspicious hour.

Mr. Bradford is so well pleased with his trip that he calculates upon another trip next year, when he intends spending a number of months instead of weeks in sketching the scenery of the Northern latitudes. He has brought back with him canoes, kyaks and many of the household utensils which he found in use among the Esquimaux Indians.—Boston Traveler, Sept. 18.

SMALL POX CURED.
SMALL POX CURED.
SMALL POX CURED
Startling as this announcement may be, it is nevertheless true. Let not skeptics doubt, or refuse the proffered remedy, but rather hail this blessed medicine as a truth, until proved otherwise. This wonderful cure for Small Pox has been tried in over one hundred cases and succeeded in every case. The cure is
DR. RADWAY'S REGULATING PILLS.
Their indication of cure is to draw the poison from the skin, blood, and other viscera, and purge it from the system through the bowels. By this means the patient is protected against pitting and eruptions of the skin. There are no other purgative pills or medicines that are safe to administer in cases of Small Pox and other eruptive fevers; the irritation and increased inflammation that a dose of the drastic pills would produce in these cases, and the weakness that would follow, would prove fatal. Radway's Pills will thoroughly purge, and at the same time heal and soothe all internal eruptions.
THE DEATH TRAIL.
The horrible trail of miseries that are saddled upon the small-pox patient, if he recovers under the usual treatment, are to be found in every form and variety of disease. Thousands of patients who have been treated for the cure of small-pox were previously healthy, yet after their apparent cure found their systems involved in a series of difficulties. This is evidence of an imperfect cure of the original disease. Radway's Pills not only cure the patient of small pox, but will secure him against all further sickness. Price 25 cents per box.
Sold by RADWAY & CO., No. 87 Maiden-lane, corner of Gold-st., and by druggists generally.

This plant is the most powerful purifier of the blood known to man. AGAIN NEW TESTIMONY.
READ.
Harlem, July 30, 1863.
I have been deaf for over twenty-five years, and Dr. Von Eisenberg operated on both of my ears without the slightest pain—a thing that I could not believe could be done. I now hear well, and feel as if I never felt for the last twenty years. The dexterity and skill with which the operation was performed evince the highest practical ability. I hear perfectly. It is now over a month since the operation, and I continue to feel as well as ever.

CATARRH CURED.
New-York, Aug. 23, 1863.
I have been suffering for the last three years from a severe Catarrh, with a continual dullness in my head, a tightness across my chest, a weight over my eyes, which were weak, watery and very painful. My nostrils were continually obstructed with a pouring of fluid. I have had frequent sneezing, hoarseness of my voice, generally attended with spitting, often with a fullness of my throat, together with a soreness and a dropping. Dr. Von Eisenberg has cured me of all these disagreeable sufferings. I now feel a new life. The treatment of Dr. Von Eisenberg is as skillful as it is successful; it is impossible to overrate the benefit I have received at his hands. I heartily recommend any one suffering like myself to place themselves under Dr. Von Eisenberg's care, with a certainty of being speedily cured. I give this with gratitude and pleasure. I cannot forbear again saying that my voice, which was hoarse and thick when I applied to Dr. Von Eisenberg, is now clear and good; indeed, I feel abundantly satisfied.
JAMES LITTLE,
No. 245 7th-st., New-York.

New-York, Sept. 8.
I have been suffering for years past from a severe Catarrh, with a great heaviness over my eyes, with a severe depression, great uneasiness, and pain in my head, great difficulty in breathing, and a continual accumulation in my nostrils, which gave me restless nights for several years. I have consulted several physicians, who pronounced me to be consumptive. What I suffered for so long a time is indescribable. My system was entirely disarranged and greatly debilitated. I not only felt weak, but I had a cloud continually before my eyes, and my ears were so affected that I was threatened with a total loss of hearing. I must say, I think, I was guided by Providence to come to Dr. Von Eisenberg, who not only cured me of my Catarrh by removing an astonishing quantity of disagreeable matter from my head, but he restored me to perfect health, a blessing I have not enjoyed for many years. Now I enjoy a good night's rest, and pursue my business with comfort. I must acknowledge that Dr. Von Eisenberg's mild and scientific treatment for Catarrh deserves the highest commendation, as the principle which directs his system of curing Catarrh is such as to render success certain.
JAMES FURLONG, No. 856 2d-av.

No. 134 Allen-st., New-York, Feb. 9, 1863.
I have been completely deaf in one ear, and partially so in the other, for above seventeen years, with a disagreeable discharge from both ears, combined with continual rumbling noise in the head, for which I have been treated by a most eminent practitioner in the City without the slightest relief.
I consulted Dr. Von Eisenberg, but I must candidly say that I had no faith in his success when I did so. It is, therefore, due to Dr. Von Eisenberg to acknowledge that I am entirely cured; also, that he displayed that skill and knowledge which have procured for him such an unrivaled reputation. As I have had an opportunity of comparing his mode of treatment with that of others, I can truly state that it is not only superior, but the principles which direct his mode of restoring the hearing are, in my opinion, certain.
JOHN TAYLOR.

New-York, July 29, 1863.
This certifies that my mother has been for some time afflicted with partial deafness, suffering from pain, and rumbling noises in the head, together with other indications of a total loss of hearing. Dr. Von Eisenberg removed from her ears a great quantity of matter, together with coagulated blood, relieving her instantaneously, and all without pain. It is with grateful thanks that I give this testimony to his skill.
CARROLL J. POST, No. 28 South-st.

SIGHT RESTORED.
June 25, 1863.
My daughter brought me to Dr. Von Eisenberg almost completely blind in both eyes. I could not bear the pain nor the light. I am completely cured by Dr. Von Eisenberg, and called now to express my gratitude to the Doctor for his skill and unremitting attention, by which I recovered one of the most precious senses to me after being deprived of it for four years. It is only due to Dr. Von Eisenberg to state that I have tried several physicians in vain. I shall be happy to bear personal testimony to Dr. Von Eisenberg's unrivaled success to any lady or gentleman who will call on me.

CHRONIC CATARRH CURED.
READ.
New-York, March 20, 1863.
"This is to certify, that I have suffered from very severe CHRONIC CATARRH, with a dull heaviness in the head. I felt my nose completely stopped up accompanied by continual soreness of the throat, the chills stealing over me with occasional hot flushes, a great tightness of the chest and pain, so much so, that every one thought it was consumption. Having heard of the great cures performed by Dr. Von Eisenberg, I consulted him with but little hope of a cure. I am now happy to be enabled to add my testimonial to the great number already in the Doctor's possession, as to his scientific and successful mode of treatment, as he has shown in my case that skill and knowledge which have procured for him so great a reputation. I am so entirely restored to perfect health that I do most sincerely recommend all sufferers from CHRONIC CATARRH and SORE THROAT to apply at once to Dr. Von Eisenberg with a certainty of being cured."

SOMETHING FOR EVERY LADY.—DR. WARD'S Great Female Benefactor or Sickening Regulating Pills. PRIVATE CONSULTATION.—DR. HUNTER has for thirty years confined his attention to diseases of a certain class, in which he has treated no less than fifty thousand cases without an instance of failure. His great remedy, HUNTER'S RED DROP, cures certain diseases when regular treatment and all other remedies fail; cures without dieting or restriction in the habits of the patient; cures without the disgusting and sickening effects of all other remedies; cures in few cases in less than six hours; cures without the dreadful consequent effects of mercury, but possesses the peculiarly valuable property of annihilating the rank and poisonous taint that the blood is sure to absorb unless his remedy is used. That is what he claims for it, and what no other will accomplish. Its value in this respect has become so well known, that scientific men in every department of medical knowledge begin to appreciate it, for hardly a week passes that he is not consulted by druggists, chemists and physicians in regard to some pitiful patient who has exhausted the whole field of the faculty, and still the disease will appear. Its popularity is so great that there is not a quack doctor in the City that has not attacked it, and when they find their lies are not so easily swallowed, they then pretend that they can make it. It is $1 a vial, and cannot be obtained genuine anywhere but at the old office, No. 3 Division-st. Book for 15 three-cent stamps, 300 pages, 100 colored illustrations. The best work out.

PROVOST-MARSHAL'S OFFICE, NINTH CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT, STATE OF NEW-YORK, (7th-av., northwest corner of West 47th-st.,) NEW-YORK, Sept. 18, 1863.

BY DIRECTION OF THE SECRETARY OF WAR, the following act of Congress and Proclamation of the President based upon the same, is published for the information of all concerned:

CHARLES E. JENKINS,
Capt. and Provost-Marshal Ninth District, N. Y.

An Act Relating to Habeas Corpus and Regulating Judicial Proceedings in Certain Cases. Approved March 3, 1863.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled: That, during the present rebellion, the President of the United States, whenever, in his judgment, the public safety may require it, is authorized to suspend the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus in any case throughout the United States, or any part thereof. And whenever and wherever the said privilege shall be suspended, as aforesaid, no military or other officer shall be compelled, in answer to any writ of habeas corpus, to return the body of any person or persons detained by him by authority of the President: but upon the certificate, under oath, of the officer having charge of any one so detained, that such person is detained by him as a prisoner under authority of the President, further proceedings under the writ of habeas corpus shall be suspended by the Judge or Court having issued the writ, so long as said suspension by the President shall remain in force, and said rebellion continue.

BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES—A PROCLAMATION.—Whereas the Constitution of the United States has ordained that the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus shall not be suspended, unless when in cases of rebellion or invasion the public safety may require it; and, whereas, a rebellion was existing on the 3d day of March, 1863, which rebellion is still existing; and, whereas, by a statute, which was approved on that day, it was enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States in Congress assembled, that during the present insurrection the President of the United States, whenever in his judgment the public safety may require, is authorized to suspend the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus in any case throughout the United States, or any part thereof; and, whereas, in the judgment of the President the public safety does require the privilege of the said writ shall now be suspended throughout the United States, in the cases where, by the authority of the President of the United States, military, naval and civil officers of the United States, or any of them, hold persons under their command, or in their custody, either as prisoners of war, spies, or aiders or abettors of the enemy; or officers, soldiers, or seamen enrolled, drafted, mustered or enlisted in, or belonging to, the land or naval forces of the United States, or as deserters therefrom, or otherwise amenable to military law, or the Rules and Articles of War, or the rules or regulations prescribed for the military or naval services by authority of the President of the United States; or for resisting a draft, or for any other offence against the military or naval service:

Now, therefore, I, Abraham Lincoln, President of the United States, do hereby proclaim and make known to all whom it may concern, that the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus is suspended throughout the United States, in the several cases before mentioned, and that this suspension will continue throughout the duration of the said rebellion, or until this proclamation shall, by a subsequent one to be issued by the President of the United States, be modified or revoked. And I do hereby require all magistrates, attorneys and other civil officers within the United States, and all officers and others in the military and naval services of the United States, to take distinct notice of this suspension, and to give it full effect, and all citizens of the United States to conduct and govern themselves accordingly, and in conformity with the Constitution of the United States, and the laws of Congress in such cases made and provided.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand, and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed, this 15th day of September, in the year of our [L. S.] Lord, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-three, and of the independence of the United States of America the eighty-eighth.

(Signed,) ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

AFFAIRS IN THE SOUTHWEST.

Interesting from Vicksburgh—Movement of Troops—The Navigation of the River Uninterrupted—Guerrillas in West Tennessee.

Special Correspondence of the St. Louis Republican.

MEMPHIS, Monday, Sept. 14.

By the Metropolitan, arrived from below, we are confirmed in the report of the movement of troops to New-Orleans. The Thirteenth army corps, Major-General ORD commanding, has moved down the river; the ultimate destination is of course a secret. Rumors are still rife of an expedition to the Rio Grande, but it cannot be contemplated to send all spare troops which are between New-Orleans and Vicksburgh to that point. We adhere to the destination being Mobile, via Pascagoula.

Gen. SHERMAN, who commands at Vicksburgh, has notified the guerrillas who hover around our picket lines on the Big Black, that unless they confine themselves to the usages of civilized warfare, he will be obliged to retaliate by laying waste the country beyond that stream. It appears that certain bands of guerrillas have been prowling around shooting at our pickets in a murderous manner.

Many boats are detained at Vicksburgh, and a very considerable movement of troops is expected thence. Fifteen hundred sick and furloughed troops crowded on board the Metropolitan. Twelve hundred of them were put off with the cheering consolation that there would not be another boat for four days.

Nothing was learned relative to the affairs in Arkansas later than the last arrival. The latest advices, though not entirely reliable, are by persons who are coming into Memphis to make purchases. According to them, our forces are approaching the rebel fortifications at Bayou Metoir. Skirmishing was going on, and a great battle expected, in which: it is needless to say, the rebels would be whipped.

In sober fact, we are a good deal in the dark about matters so near as STEELE's army. One impression common here is that STEELE is halting for reinforcements. Another, that the rebels are falling back to Arkadelphia and the Upper Red River. I can but regret, after reasonable endeavor, the utter absence of anything satisfactory in regard to that army. Persons in Memphis have been thirty miles out from Duvall's Bluff within the last ten days; they report great suffering and much sickness in the army.

Every one must be astonished at the comparative quiet with which the steamers pass up and down the river without any of the threatened guerrilla firing. There is no considerable body of the enemy near the river bank. The activity of our troops, seconded, no doubt, by the Musquito fleet and the Marine brigade, has had the most cheering intimidating effect. But one or two boats have been fired on in a month, and then with slight casualties.

We regret that we cannot record equal success on the part of the troops in Gen. HURLBUT's district. Guerrillas are roving all over West Tennessee almost unchecked. We still continue to run trains to Corinth, but the importation of cotton is stopped by a very close rebel police established immediately round the city. They come close up to our pickets and capture citizens, and conscript, rob and maltreat them. There seems to be no reason why these bands should not be put down. The people remaining in the interior are either too old and constitutionally indisposed to fight for rebellion, or they are desirous that the Union should triumph. All of them are desirous for a state of peace. But they are neither encouraged to arm to disperse these gangs themselves, nor are the United States troops assigned to the service.

Persons are reported to have arrived in town recently from Mobile, Selma and Charleston. If their reports are to be relied on, Mobile will be given up without much of a fight. JOHNSTON has gone thence to Atlanta, where he commands in person. His army, which was near Jackson, has gone after him and the Gulf coast is left bare of troops. BRAGG is in disgrace, while PEMBERTON is entrusted with the defense of Mobile.

Rumors are rife in the Southwest that an alliance offensive and defensive has been entered into between Mexico and the South. Great expectations are laid upon the ram fleet, which is soon to fall upon our blockading fleet and destroy it piecemeal.

The new line of the rebel defence seems to be in general terms defined by the Coosa and Tombigbee Rivers. Mobile, which is very strong on the sea side, is quite vulnerable by land, and would fall by the same tactics as did Vicksburgh.

The guerrillas in Arkansas and West Louisiana, thanks to Gen. BANKS' efforts, have been completely silenced. Persons from Lake Providence report that the black troops have not been molested of late.

From New-Mexico.

THE CARSON EXPEDITION—DEPREDATIONS OF THE NAVAJOES.

We learn from the Santa Fé papers that at last accounts from the Navajo country, Col. CARSON's expedition was making good progress. While near the Moqui villages, in the western part of the Territory, he encountered a band of Navajoes, killing twelve men, and capturing thirty women and children; also three hundred horses and a large flock of sheep. After the battle, KONNATZHE, the Utah Chief, and his men left Col. CARSON, and arrived at Fort Defiance, (now Fort Canby,) on the 15th ult. He claimed that he and his Utes, having done the killing and capturing, were entitled to the horses, &c., and said that Col. CARSON having refused to let him have them, he concluded to leave and go home. However valuable these people may be as guides and spies, it is not to be presumed that Col. CARSON would allow them to dictate to him the terms upon which the prisoners and stock captured should be disposed of.

The command was in pursuit of another party of Indians when the Ute Chief left. It is supposed that the larger part of the Navajoes are in the country where Col. CARSON is operating.

In the more southern portion of the Territory the Navajoes occasionally make their appearance with booty stolen from the settlements. These occasions give rise to exciting pursuits on the part of the volunteers stationed there, which develop and manifest their capacity and fitness for Indian fighting. We will here direct attention to one of these pursuits, which was conducted by Capt. HENRY A. GREEN, First Infantry California Volunteers, from Fort McRea, on the 8th ult. With a small body of men (twenty in number) mounted on wagon mules, he followed the Indians for five days through a desert country, and finally overtook them among the mountains, the numerous canons of which afforded them opportunities to escape without being drawn into a conflict with the Captain and his men. But the booty was recovered. About 1,500 sheep were recovered and returned to Fort Craig.

The difficulties in the way of hunting up the enemy in that country (as in all wild countries) are, however, very great. As showing this, Maj. WILLS reports that with one hundred and thirty men he spent twelve days, and traveled two hundred and eighty miles, in the direction of Zuni, accomplishing nothing beyond the arrest of a Navajo squaw, though he was satisfied there were bands roving through the region he traversed.

The Santa Fe Gazette of the 29th says: "Major WALLEN, Inspector-General of the Department, leaves for Denver City to-day, accompanying his family that far on their way to the East. On the Major's return to Fort Union, he will enter on a tour of inspecting duty from that point to Forts Bascom, Sumner and Stanton to Santa Fé."—St. Louis Republican, 18th.

Letter from a Union Prisoner in Fort Sumter.

The Easton Express publishes the following letter from Assistant-Engineer HARMANY, of Easton, who was one of the naval expedition that undertook to storm Fort Sumter, and was made a prisoner. He writes as follows to his parents:

FORT SUMTER, CHARLESTON, S. C., Wednesday, Sept. 9, 1863.

MY DEAR PARENTS: You may be surprised to receive a letter from me, dated from this place of "brick and mortar," but so it is. An expedition was fitted out to assault and carry the fort. We reckoned without our host, for in place of we taking, we were taken. The way it was is this: At about 4:30 P. M., Capt. WILLIAMS collected the different boats comprising the expedition. Among the number were two boats from the Housatonic. I volunteered to go in the one commanded by Lieut. BROWN, (the other was in command of M. M. BUTLER.) We immediately proceeded to the flagship, when I found that our party was in the third division, and commanded by the Flag-Lieut. S. W. PASSON. We were towed within a hundred yards of the fort and cast adrift. We then formed line and proceeded toward Sumter. When within fifty yards of the fort we were hailed and fired upon by the sentinel. We gave a yell and pitched in in good style—but it was no go. All of Capt. WILLIAMS', one Lieut. PASSON's boat, and one from that. REHN's division were all that landed. The others, about eighteen, commenced firing their revolvers and skedaddled. We, who landed, quickly formed under Capt. WILLIAMS, (I as Lieutenant,) and tried "to rush up the rocks"—but it was no go. We tried to do what we volunteered to do, but could not; so we got in one of the many indentures made in the walls by Gen. GILLMORE, and came to the conclusion it would be best for us to surrender, which we did. Our men behaved nobly, and we are now prisoners of war. Some of our party received letters from those who were among the skedaddlers wishing they were with us. At all events we all done what we volunteered to do, which was to get inside of Fort Sumter, (although prisoners.) The officers in command here are perfect gentlemen, and treat us as brave men, which we showed we were in our three successive attempts up the side of the fort. Not a man quailed, but all rushed towards the parapet with the intention of either placing the flag on its walls or falling in the attempt. Very fortunately only four were killed and about sixteen wounded. I, as usual, am one of the lucky ones, escaping without a scratch. The scene after we landed I will try to describe at another time, it was fearful as well as amusing.

Yours affectionately, J. H. H.

FOUND DROWNED.—Coroner BENNETT held an inquest at Fort Hamilton yesterday upon the body of a man found lying on the beach. The deceased was about 50 years old, had good teeth, black hair, whiskers under the chin, and was dressed in gray striped pants, gray mixed under-shirt, plaid flannel over-shirt, and coarse shoes. The jury rendered the verdict, "Found drowned."

"Democracy Running to Seed."

LETTER FROM THURLOW WEED.

From the Albany Evening Journal.

In April I warned the Democracy of Connecticut of a defeat which was realized. For unavoidable reasons the Union strength of that State was then so much impaired, that the Democracy might have carried it easily. But, lacking both sense and patriotism, it adopted a "Copperhead" Platform, and was beaten.

On the 12th of August I reiterated that warning to the Democracy of Maine, taking the following extract from the letter of Mr. BRADBURY, their nominee for Governor:

"Are the people of Maine ready to concede the claim set up by the National Administration to that despotic power which would deprive them of their dearest rights and most sacred privileges—of all those noble guarantees affecting life, liberty and property, which are secured to them by the grand old Constitution established by their fathers?"

This, as I remarked, "is New-England Federalism, rank and raw. This precise language is stereotyped in the archives of Federalism. They preached it until the patriotic masses loathed Federalism and spewed it out."

I stated then, what I reiterate now, that the sentiments and policy of the Federalists in 1814, borrowed from the Tories of 1780, "would run the Democratic party under; for no party, be its antecedents what they may, can, during the war, be unfaithful to the country, with impunity. The people unerringly, find and take the patriotic side. No matter if the Administration errs, falls short of its duty, or even exceeds its authority, the people, in and through all such trials, stand by their Government."

The Democratic candidate for Governor of Maine inquired whether the people of that State would uphold the "National Administration" in the exercise of "despotic power;" whether they would surrender their "dearest rights and most sacred privileges;" and finally whether they would yield "the noble guarantees affecting life, liberty and property."

Mr. BRADBURY awaited his answer through the ballot-boxes. He has it! It is the answer that patriotism returned to similar inquiries submitted to the electors of Connecticut, Kentucky, Vermont and California. It is the answer Ohio will return to the disloyal teachings of VALLANDIGHAM—the answer that all loyal States will return to "Copperhead" interrogatories.

This is the first time I have availed myself of the offensive epithet "Copperhead." I do not apply it indiscriminately to Democrats. God forbid that I should be tempted to do so great a wrong. The army and the navy number, among their gallant and devoted legions, tens of thousands of Democrats. The soil of rebellion is fertilized by Democratic blood. During the first two years of the war, the voice of party was merged in a generous emulation for country. And even now there are Democratic soldiers, statesmen and Generals doing their whole duty.

But, unfortunately, this is not true of the Democratic party, for, as a party, they are either controlled, or beguiled, or paralyzed by disloyal influences. If, in their speeches and resolutions, the rebellion is spoken of, it is with "bated breath." They treat it tenderly. With treason and traitors they "roar you gently as any sucking dove." But upon the Administration they visit all their indignation, exhaust all their bitterness, and waste all their thunder.

It is in no partisan spirit I say all this, for until this wicked rebellion is over, I care nothing for party. Indeed, my wish and hope has been, and is, that the Democratic party, imbued with patriotism and wisdom, would rise in its strength, unite with the political friends of the Administration, and crush REBELLION.

That such a course would bring the Democratic party into power, I foresee and concede—concede readily and cheerfully; for those who preserve the Government and restore the Union are entitled to the confidence and gratitude of the people.

But factious opposition, party fault-finding, and above all "Copperhead" exhibitions, will neither end the war, restore the Union, or enable the Democratic party to elect a President.

It would be absurd to claim perfection for the Administration. Infallibility belongs not to the fallible, I can see errors and infirmities—weaknesses and blunders, in the Administration. But for these things am I, or is any one, justified in giving "aid and comfort to the enemy?" Will the Democratic party obstinately close its eyes to the fact that, in a time of war, opposition to the Administration is resistance to the Government? * * * *

As to the draft, it was, at the least, but of doubtful expediency; and it has been, from various causes, so complicated and embarrassed as to render it largely ineffectual. We shall not obtain as many conscripts as are required to bring the war to an honorable conclusion. We ought not to have been in this dilemma. At an early day I suggested and urged upon members of Congress and members of the Cabinet a remedy for the evil we now suffer from. It was simply to enlist men for "two years, or for during the war." Under that form of enlistment we should now have rejoiced in an army of veterans. But, as an outsider, my voice was too feeble. I remembered that this was the most popular form of enlistment in 1812. It was the form, after serving three short campaigns as a volunteer, under which I enlisted myself, in 1814, though that term of service expired by the treaty of peace before I left the recruiting rendezvous.

But while the draft will not give to the army the number of troops required, there is another way of doing it. And this imposes a duty upon us all. We need now a rekindling of the flame of patriotism which illuminated the States and inspired the people in 1861 and 1862. Let us appeal to the spirit that then animated all classes. More and better soldiers can be obtained by voluntary efforts than by conscription. Experience had taught others that the Washington Government seems not to have understood, that for obtaining soldiers, July and August are unreasonable months; that while recruits, during the heated term, are obtained with difficulty, in September, October and November they come with a rush. If this and other States can be organized and stimulated, as this State was in 1862, by Gov. MORGAN, an invincible army, including one-half or two-thirds of the returned veterans, (one of whom is worth two green volunteers, or three conscripts,) can be raised in two months.

Nor should it be forgotten, either by the recruits or by those who are called upon to furnish bounties, that their army work is nearly done—that the fighting is principally over. We need a large army now more for moral effect than for battles. In the future, more will depend upon statesmen and civilians than upon Generals and soldiers.

And now a word in conclusion. The President has, by proclamation, suspended the writ of habeas corpus. This, though a necessity in some portions of the country, and elsewhere perfectly harmless, will be made the occasion for renewed and vehement exhibitions of political hostility. The Atlas, of yesterday, announced it as a "Suspension of the Writ of Liberty."

This Proclamation, even while no more than one Judge MCCUNN exists, is as needful as it was in New-Orleans, where there was a Judge HALL and a Gen. JACKSON. None but enemies have anything to fear from it. But if it were otherwise—if, in isolated cases, this power should be abused, it is better that an individual should be wronged than that the Government and Union should be endangered.

This Proclamation will strengthen the Government and weaken its enemies; and those who, for political effect, choose to reenact the folly of the Federalists, will find themselves, after the rebellion has been put down, where the Federalists were after the war of 1812, compelled to disband—the leaders either seeking protection from popular indignation within healthier political organizations, or, in retirement and obscurity, invoking the forgetfulness of their countrymen. Gold-Mining in Canada.

Correspondence of the New-York Times.

QUEBEC, Wednesday, Sept. 16, 1863.

Year by year an attempt is made to bring into notice the gold field on the Chaudiere River near Quebec, and year by year, as the nuggets found increase in size, the attempt more nearly attains success. At length a sort of gold fever has been induced, and from 300 to 500 men are now at work on the diggings, with the varying success which appears to attend gold-mining all the world over. Some men go up and find nothing; others make their $50 per diem, a good deal of the difference depending on the character of the claims taken up; more, perhaps, on the industry and perseverance of the miners. A fine lot of nuggets, weighing about nine pounds, were brought down from the diggings last week by one person, the largest weighing just ten ounces, and being valued at $200. Specimens of quartz, with fine pieces of gold in it, are also shown; but no machinery for crushing has as yet been sent up to the spots where the quartz occurs.

The drift gold of the Chaudiere differs in appearance from that of Australia or California. There is none of what is often called "dust gold" here, but it is replaced by small pieces resembling shot of various sizes pressed and crushed out of shape. The larger pieces have the same battered appearance, which, it strikes me, is possibly due to the action of ice. The gold is yellow rather than red, and very pure. I suppose $50,000 worth have been got out this season. Within the past fortnight a company have built sluices and "dals" on the Gilbert River, a tributary of the Chaudiere, and we may therefore soon look for better results than have hitherto been obtained without appliances of this kind. Their success will probably determine whether there is or is not to be another gold excitement on a grand scale. My belief is that there is plenty of the precious metal, and in great nuggets, too, and that, ere long, Lower Canada will take a high rank as a gold-producing country. I say Lower Canada, but there is little doubt that the auriferous formations extend into portions of the Eastern States, though whether it is everywhere as rich as it is here I could not venture to say.

Arrivals in the City.

Gen. Dan. E. Sickles and Staff arrived at the Brevoort House on Saturday at 10 o'clock A. M., from Lake George, where he has been spending a few days succeeding his departure from Saratoga. He retired to the quietness of his country seat for the purpose of spending the Sabbath. He will be in the City again to-day. His health is reported to be exceedingly good, and, although he is still obliged to use the crutches, rumor says he will visit Washington the latter part of this week with the intention of again assuming active command shortly after his arrival.

M. de La Maria, French Legation; Wm. H. Russell, Lexington, Mo.; Com. Chas. O. Boutell, Coast Survey; Geo. S. Lawrence and Chas. Jeffery, England; Jonathan Sargeant and J. Head, Boston; are at the Fifth-avenue House.

Col. Marshall and wife, U. S. Vols.; Capt. J. G. Walker, U. S. Navy; Capt. J. G. McDermott and Surgeon R. B. Smith, U. S. Army; Capt. R. F. Clark, Morris Island, and Capt. J. F. Grimes, U. S. Army, are at the Astor House.

The Honors to the Late Col. M. K. Bryan.

The remains of Col. M. K. BRYAN were laid in state on Saturday at the City Hall, where they have been visited by a large number of citizens. They will so remain until 2 P. M. to-day. On their arrival from New-Orleans they were placed in charge of Mr. WM. CARROLL, undertaker. It was found impossible to expose the body to view. He has handsomely inclosed the remains—the coffin covered with black cloth, with silver fastenings, and is elegantly and chastely ornamented. A large silver plate bears the following inscription:

Col. M. K. BRYAN,
One Hundred and Seventy-fifth N. Y. Volunteers,
Killed in Action before Port Hudson, La.,
June 14, 1863,
In his 40th year.

The coffin is draped with the American flag, over the plate is a wreath of immortelles, and at the foot is the sword and military hat of the deceased.

Yesterday a detail guard from the One Hundred and Seventy-fifth regiment, under command of Capt. JOHN MCGUIRE, were on duty at the Governor's Room, and were relieved in the evening by a squad from the Sixty-ninth regiment, N. Y. S. N. G.

The remains will be taken from the Governor's Room to-day at 2 P. M., under escort of the Sixty-ninth regiment, and conveyed to the Albany boat at the foot of Cortlandt-street, where they will be delivered to the Committee of that city. At Albany the funeral will take place on Wednesday, the remains lying in state at the Capitol until that day, when the State and civil authorities will unite with the military in the funeral ceremonies.

The Committee on National Affairs, Alderman FARLEY, Chairman, have handsomely perfected all the arrangements for the honors to be paid in this City to the deceased.

The following orders, for to-day, have been issued by Gen. SANFORD and Col. BAGLEY:

Moral Aspects of Our City.

At the Tabernacle, No. 446 Broadway, quite a large audience assembled last evening to hear the second discourse of Rev. C. C. Goss upon the above subject. The choir, consisted of some twenty young Misses, opened with singing "All hail! the power of Jesus' name." After the usual opening exercises, and the taking of a collection in behalf of the Poor Fund of the Christian Alliance, the speaker said that his object this evening was to show the numbers and relative influence of the various nationalities in our midst, and urge the diffusion of the Gospel as the only means to harmonize and blend them.

Although this island was first settled by the Dutch, yet very soon these were mixed with other ingredients. The Patroons induced emigration without respect to nationality. In 1624 some Walloons settled here; in 1642 an English colony from New-England; in 1665 some Swedes from the Delaware; in 1699 quite a number of German exiles from England. Africans, too, about this time numbered 600. Thus, in the year 1700 our City was composed of a heterogeneous class, numbering some 5,000.

The next seventy-five years there was scarcely any importations. In 1725 we numbered 7,000; in 1750, 9,000, and in 1775, 22,000. Thus, at the beginning of the revolution, we were more homogeneous than before or since. The speaker argued that there was a providence in this. At the close of this century we had increased to 60,489, but the increase was mostly from the neighboring colonies, so that our homogeneity was undisturbed. In 1820, although we numbered 123,706, only 5,084 were aliens.

From this time, however, the floodgates of immigration were opened and all nations poured in upon us. In 1855 the total number of our population was 629,820. Of these 326,099 were of foreign birth, and 303,721—an excess of the former of over 22,000. The speaker here presented tables showing the exact number of the various nativities now in our City, and the proportion of each in the various Wards. In round numbers we have 1,000,000 of inhabitants, 500,000 are foreigners. One half of these, or 250,000, are Irish, 125,000 Germans, 25,000 English and the remaining 100,000 mixed. Many of the native born are far from being American. A birth here does not make them in essence and feeling Anglo-American.

All these diverse elements cannot be blended, politically, mentally, nor, for a long time, ethnologically. It can only be done morally. The Gospel scheme is the only one on record intended to blend all nations in one. This should be propagated in the English language. The great mistake of missionaries, at home and abroad, is the reverse of this. The speaker read the second chapter of Acts to show that what the Gospel did for all nations in Jerusalem it can do in New-York. The next discourse of the series is, "The neglected children of our City, and what should be done for them."

"The Parochial Fund of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the Diocese of New-York," to whose advertisement in another column we direct attention, is an object that will commend itself to all classes of churchmen, and indeed to many who are not churchmen. The purchase of glebes, and the building of parsonages for the hard-working country clergy, is an object so catholic, that few of the wealthy and generous will decline to aid it.

The special act of the Legislature, by which the Trustees are created—an act carefully revised by the lamented LUTHER BRADISH, in conjunction with Judge MURRAY HOFFMAN, supplies a want long and painfully felt in the Episcopal Church of a fund to which its members might contribute during their lives, or by their wills, with a well-grounded confidence as to the faithful appropriation of their gifts.

The gentlemen selected by the Diocesan Convention to control the fund, including the names of Gen. DIX, Messrs. HOFFMAN, DE PEYSTER, ASTOR, &c., afford no slight guarantee for skill and fidelity in its management.

Induced by the extensive sale and universal popularity of Hoofland's German Bitters, (purely vegetable,) hosts of ignorant Quacks and unscrupulous adventurers, have opened upon suffering humanity the flood-gates of Nostrums in the shape of poor whisky, vilely compounded with injurious drugs, and christened Tonics, Stomachics and Bitters.

Beware of the innumerable array of Alcoholic preparations in plethoric bottles and big-bellied kegs, under the modest appellation of Bitters, which instead of curing, only aggravate disease, and leave the disappointed sufferer in despair.

Do you want something to strengthen you?
Do you want a good appetite?
Do you want to build up your constitution?
Do you want to feel well?
Do you want to get rid of nervousness?
Do you want energy?
Do you want to sleep well?
Do you want a brisk and vigorous feeling?

If you do, use HOOFLAND'S GERMAN BITTERS.

From Rev. J. Newton Brown, D. D., Editor of the Encyclopedia of Religious Knowledge.

Although not disposed to favor or recommend Patent Medicines in general, through distrust of their ingredients and effects, I yet know of no sufficient reasons why a man may not testify to the benefits he believes himself to have received from any simple preparation, in the hope that he may thus contribute to the benefit of others.

I do this more readily in regard to Hoofland's German Bitters, prepared by Dr. C. M. Jackson, of this City, because I was prejudiced against them for many years, under the impression that they were chiefly an alcoholic mixture. I am indebted to my friend Robert Shoemaker, Esq., for the removal of this prejudice by proper statements, and for encouragement to try them, when suffering from great and long continued debility. The use of three bottles of these Bitters, at the beginning of the present year, was followed by evident relief, and restoration to a degree of bodily and mental vigor which I had not felt for six months before, and had almost despaired of regaining. I therefore thank God and my friend for directing me to the use of them. J. NEWTON BROWN.

PARTICULAR NOTICE.

There are many preparations sold under the name of Bitters, put up in quart bottles, compounded of the cheapest whisky or common rum, costing from 20 to 40 cents per gallon, the taste disguised by Anise or Coriander Seed.

This class of Bitters has caused, and will continue to cause, as long as they can be sold, hundreds to die the death of the drunkard. By their use, the system is kept continually under the influence of alcoholic stimulants of the worst kind, the desire for Liquor is created and kept up, and the result is all the horrors attendant upon a drunkard's life and death.

For those who desire and will have a Liquor Bitters we publish the following receipt. Get one bottle Hoofland's German Bitters and mix with three quarts of good brandy or whisky, and the result will be a preparation that will far excel in medicinal virtues and true excellence any of the numerous Liquor Bitters in the market and will cost much less. You will have all the virtues of HOOFLAND'S BITTERS *in connection with a good article of Liquor, at a much less price than these inferior pre
